The temperature has fallen over the west and remained stationary in all other sections. Changes in the east will be slight, and over the west a fall will occur to-day or to-morrow.

Sustained by the Court of Appeals.

Attempt of the Republicans to Break Down.

The Work of the Legislature Has Failed.

Important Decision Rendered in New York.

The Party of Boodle and High Taxes Must Look Somewhere Else Than in the Empire State.

Albany, N. Y., Oct. 13.—The court of appeals to-day handed down decisions in the apportionment cases, three in number. The cases and decisions are as follows:

The people ex rel Bond, as appellant, v. the board of supervisors of Monroe county.

The court is asked to issue a writ of mandamus compelling the board of supervisors of Monroe county to redistrict the assembly districts in that county in compliance with the apportionment law passed by the last legislature.

Orders reversed and motions for a mandamus granted with all costs.

Second case—the people ex rel. Horn, appellant, v. the board of supervisors of Oneida county, the same proceedings as in the Monroe case. Orders reversed and motions for a mandamus granted with costs in all courts.

Third Case—The people ex rel George C. Carter, of Utica, appellant, v. Frank Rice, secretary of state. It asks the court to grant an injunction order restraining the secretary of state from recognizing the new apportionment law, or sending out notices of election of members of assembly to county clerks under that law. Order affirmed with costs in all courts.

The opinions are written by Judges Peckham and Gray. Earl O'Brien and Maynard concur and Andrews dissents on one question in which Finch concurs.

Judge Peckham writes the principal opinion in the three cases. It covers 46 pages of typewritten copy. He says in it, after reciting the character of the three cases:

"All the proceedings have for their object the decision of the question as to the validity of the apportionment act of 1892.

"This apportionment act of 1892, it is alleged, violates the provisions of the constitution in several particulars.

"While the questions in themselves are most important and far reaching, yet we are compelled by the necessities of the case to decide them at the earliest moment. We, however, feel more competent to do this because, however important the questions may be, we think the proper and correct answers are quite plain and clear.

"The rule which has governed courts since the adoption of our constitutions, both federal and state, in relation to the exercise of the power to declare an enactment of the legislative body unconstitutional, has been plainly laid down in many reported cases, and has been rigidly adhered to by both the federal and state courts.

"Before courts will deem it their duty to declare an act of the legislature void as in violation of some provision of the constitution, a case must be presented in which there can be no rational doubt. No incompatibility of the legislative enactment with the constitution must be manifest and unequivocal."

He cites the sections of the constitution relating to apportionment and says:

"It is contended by those who oppose the validity of the law of 1892 that it was passed in violation of that provision of the consitution which directs the alteration to be made by the legislature at the first session after the return of every enumeration.'

"The act was in truth passed at an extraordinary session of the legislature called by the governor, and after the return of the enumeration of 1892. The point is made that an extraordinary session is not such a session of the legislature as is contemplated by the constitution. To my mind the objection is wholly without force. An extraordinary session is nevertheless a session of the legislature.

"The term of office of its members may not have ended but the legislative session has certainly terminated by an adjournment without day. It could not again assemble and perform any valid act unless the governor under the special power given him by the constitution should convene it. When thus convened the legislature is in session and it is clearly not the same session which was ended by a prior adjournment thereof without day.

"The constitution does not provide that the next legislature after the return of the enumeration and at its first session shall make this apportionment. It was a session of the legislature and it was the first which was held after the return of the enumeration and it was competent to deal with that subject because of the recommendation of the governor."

TROOPS WITHDRAWN.

Homestead Soldiers Have Departed.

The Camp Broken and the Blue Coats Go to Their Homes.

Homestead, Oct. 13.—The military espionage that has been kept over this town for 95 days came to an end this morning. Almost the entire population of the town gathered to witness the departure of the militia, but there was no demonstration of any kind.

At 10 o'clock every vestige of the camp was removed and the men marched to Munhall station and boarded the special train which was in waiting. After the departure of the troops the crowd dispersed and the town took on its wonted quiet.

Gen. Wiley said to a reporter that while no further trouble was anticipated the troops would be held in readiness, and should circumstances require they would quickly return to Homestead.

Sheriff McCleary's force of deputies now number 30 men. Mr. Frick visited the works this morning, but declined to be interviewed.

Six Hundred Inhabitants in Iowa With No Place to Sleep.

Sioux City, Ia., Oct. 13.—The little town of Salix, 16 miles southeast of here on the Northwestern railway, was wiped from the prairie last night by a fire of unknown origin.

The 600 inhabitants are most homeless, but the weather is warm, and no immediate suffering will result.

A Township Full of the Dread Disease.

Three Hundred Cases and Scarcely a Family Has Escaped.

Plain City, O., Oct. 13.—Jerome township, this county, is one big hospital. Every school in the township is closed, and it is estimated that within a radius of four miles there are 300 cases of diphtheria.

Scarcely a family has escaped. All the surrounding country has quarantined against the township, and patrols guard all the roads. Not a particle of business is being done, and all farm work is suspended.

A Warrant Issued Charging Treason.

The Attempt to Extradite Him Will Be Fought in the Ohio Courts.

Youngstown, O., Oct. 13.—E. O. Christy in the employ of the Carnegie company, has sworn out a warrant charging Burgess McLuckie with treason and being a fugitive from justice in accordance with the Pittsburg bench warrant. McLuckie is in the hands of friends and will surrender to-day. His counsel say the attempts to extradite will be fought in all the Ohio courts.

KILLED BY A WOMAN.

Fritz Schmitt Shot by Grace Smith.

Chicago, Oct. 13.—Fritz Schmitt was shot and instantly killed by Grace Smith at 1:45 this morning.

Schmitt was a bartender, 22 years old, and had lived with the Smith woman up to three weeks ago.

Last night they met on the street and Schmitt persuaded her to accompany him to Adolf Nowiak's saloon at No. 495 Clark street.

The couple were heard quarreling by the occupants of the adjoining stall, but it was not until the sound of three shots rang out that anything wrong was suspected. When the people of the house rushed in they found Schmitt dead on the floor with three bullet wounds in the head and a 22-caliber revolver lying by his side.

TEMPERED ALUMINUM.

Quebec, Oct. 13.—Blacksmith Allard, of Levis, who has discovered the secret of tempering copper, has tempered a piece of aluminum. The test was made at the demand of a New York firm. Abbe La Flamme, the renowned scientist, examined the tempered metal and gave Allard a certificate that the aluminum was tempered as hard as steel could be.

GILMORE'S SUCCESSOR.

St. Louis, Oct. 13.—At a meeting of the members of Gilmore's band yesterday, a committee was appointed to secure a new leader. An offer has been made to Prof. D. W. Reeves, director of the Providence, R. I., Cadet band, and it is believed he will assume the leadership of the famous musical organization.

COUNCILMAN DALY

Testifies in His Own Behalf in Common Pleas Court.

He Denies, Generally and Specifically,

Most of the Stenographer's Notes, as Well as Other Accusations—Motion to Discharge Mr. Daly Overruled.

The Daly trial is grinding away with increasing interest each day. The court room is packed to the doors, the attendance consisting mostly of business men and attorneys. At press time yesterday Frand M. Schmidt, bookkeeper for the Pluto Oil company, was on the stand.

On cross examination the witness testified that he could not see the speaker, and only knew what was transpiring by the voices, but nothing of any consequence was developed.

The state called City Clerk Lamb to identify the abstract of the vote cast during the spring election by which the councilmen were elected.

Solicitor Read was called and testified to administering the oath of office to Mr. Daly, and that he acted in the capacity as a member of the city council from that time up to date.

The abstract of the vote of the Fourth ward was offered in evidence and made a part of the record.

Mr. Barber then read the ordinance to the jury, after which he announced that the state would rest the case.

A recess of 20 minutes was taken, Judge Ritchie requesting time to consult before proceeding farther with the case.

City Clerk Lamb was the first witness called for the defense. He testified to the record of the meeting of the council July 18, the date upon which the Pluto ordinance was passed. The record was introduced as evidence. Passed, yeas 14, 2 nays, Messrs. Gill and Tanner voting nay. This was introduced to show that Mr. Daly voted for the ordinance.

Mr. Brophy called for the vote of the aldermen.

The court said that the ordinance was voted upon after the action of the grand jury, and that the action of the board of aldermen was not material.

Judge Ritchie stated that the defense desired to show that there was reason to oppose the honorable discharge of duty, and that the measure had met with similar opposition in the board of aldermen.

The record of the vote of the aldermen was introduced, which showed that on May 30 the ordinance passed, yeas 8, nays 1.

There was no cross-examination.

William J. Gill, one of the indicted councilmen, was next called. He testified that he was elected to the council one year ago last spring.

"Mr. Gill, I would like to ask you that, outside of the regular meetings of the city council, were there ever any meetings of councilmen?"

"Yes, sir."

"When?"

"Some time last May."

"Where?"

"At Neuendorf's store."

"Who were present?"

"Tanner, Swain, Taylor, Neuendorf and myself."

"Was the defendant there?"

"He was not."

"When was this meeting held?"

"After committee meeting on Thursday evening."

"Was there any special call?"

"None that I know of. The first I knew of it I met Mr. Swain on the street and he asked me if I knew there was to be a meeting. I said I did not. He said there was, and I asked him what for, and he said that it was to discuss some plan to aid each other in ward administration."

"Was there any light?"

"There was."

"What was said?"

"Well, we had a talk about aiding each other in our ward affairs. Of gathering together and helping each other out in ward legislation."

"Was there anything said about doing something for corporations and getting a slice for it?"

"There was not."

"Was there anything said about favoring certain contractors?"

"There was not."

"Was there anything said about the Northwestern Ohio Natural Gas company?"

"There was not."

"Was there anything said about the Pluto Oil company?"

"There was not."

"Was there anything said about the Warren-Scharf Paving company?"

"There was not. We simply discussed what would be of interest to each other."

He said Mr. Faskins was not present or nothing said about his being a go between. He testified that the next meeting was held at Tanner's office. He did not think Daly was there. He did think Doner, Neuendorf, Tanner, Faskins and himself were present.

"What was said at that meeting?"

"I thing Tanner had something to say about a street in the Sixth ward; I think the Pluto and Paragon ordinance came up and I said that I was opposed to them because there had been an oil pipe line through that ward."

The court said there was no use in going into the examination in this manner and enjoined Mr. Brophy to keep the witness to material things.

"Was there anything said about demanding compensation from the Pluto or Paragon Oil companies?"

"The only time I ever heard anything said about money was that money was to be paid to a certain man and that certain man was to do something."

The witness testified that the next meeting was held at Fisher's club house. He said that the only time money was talked about was that at that meeting Neuendorf said that Machen offered him stuff and that he told Neuendorf to have nothing to do with that kind of business. He said they talked about stuff in a joking manner. He testified that August Machen came to him and asked him not to oppose their ordinance in the council.

"Did Machen ever offer you money?"

"Yes, sir, he did."

"When was that?"

"After the first meeting after the ordinance was introduced into the council. He came to me and offered me $500, and said that my vote would aid the measure very much."

The court then said that this was not material.

"Supposing," he said, "that these councilmen every one of them were offered money it would not make any material difference in this case."

"Were you ever in Mr. Lorenz's office?"

"Yes, sir.'

"Who with?"

"Mr. Tanner and Mr. Daly."

"Did they send for you?"

"Yes, sir. I was on Summit street one day when Tanner and Daly come to me and said that Mr. Lorenz wanted to see me. I said I did not know what Lorenz wanted to be tagging me around for; they said he had offered them $5,500 to pass the ordinance."

This concluded the direct examination, and the state cross-examined, which was conducted by Mr. Tracy.

As to the meeting at Neuendorf's store, the relative position of those present was described by the witness.

"Was Mr. Schmuhl there?"

"I don't think he was."

He did not know positively whether Doner or Rutherford were present or not. He did not know whether the meeting was held after the council meeting or committee meeting. He did not know who suggested the next meeting. He thought they were there about 15 minutes.

"Were there not more than the four present?"

"I don't remember exactly. I can only remember the three distinctly."

"Why can you only remember the three?"

"Well, I don't know."

He did not know whom he went away with. He did not remember whether there were other parties spoken of as probable members. Some one said something about some other fellow coming in. He said Swain was not directed to see Felker about coming in.

The next meeting was at Tanner's office. He did not know who he went with; thought there were four or five. There were three or four present. He thought Doner was there and Mr. Faskins. He did not know whether Felker was present or not. He did not know how many meetings Mr. Swain attended, but thought he attended the meeting at Tanner's office. Faskins was present at Tanner's office. He just went down with the boys; that there was nothing private about the meetings; that there was no chairman, but sometimes they laughed and said that they ought to have a chairman; that sometimes one fellow would say, "I motion this and I motion that," but nothing was done. He did not remember the meeting at Taylor's store; neither did he attend a meeting at Mr. Rutherford's or Mr. Fry's store. He did not recollect whether he was there, but was not positive. This, he said, was before the club house meeting. He said they did not join hands at Neuendorf's store; nothing was said about a pledge. "Mr. Manchester," he continued, "was present at the club house and that was the only meeting."

"Who were present at the club house?"

"I think Daly, Neuendorf, Swain, Felker, Schmuhl, Taylor and Rutherford."

He said they went out to the club house just to have a little time. He was in the summer house with others. He thought the Pluto oil ordinance was spoken about.

"Was anything said about the Consolidated offering $10,000 for 10 votes to defeat that ordinance, or about Mr. Daly being delegated to see Mr. Robison?"

"I did not hear anything said."

"Now, why could you not remember the names of members present at the other meetings? You seem to remember distinctly those out at the club house."

"Well, it is just that way sometimes, you know."

"Mr. Gill, did you have a talk with Mr. Machen prior to the introduction of this ordinance, about introducing?"

"He came to me and I told him that I would not introduce the ordinance."

"Did you not warn him that there would be a combination against his ordinance and to look out for it?"

"I told him that, as in all councils, men will stand stand together on certain things. I told him him that I would prevent the ordinance from going through."

He testified that Lorenz sent for him. He thought they told him that Lorenz wanted them to put the thing through, and that Lorenz had offered them money. He said he posted the boys not to have anything to do with those fellows; that they were bad people, and did not mean anything. He said that he went down to Lorenz's office, and when he went in Lorenz told him that he had just offered the boys $5,500 to put the ordinance through. He told Lorenz that he would not vote for the ordinance, and he said, as he went out, he told Lorenz the ordinance would not go through.

Lorenz said if you folks will get enough votes to pass this ordinance he would give $5,500. He mentioned something about certain parties who would vote for it.

He did not remember exactly whether Tanner said anything or not; that Tanner and Lorenz were parrying back and forth and said something about $5,500. He denied the stenographic report. As to standing in with the crowd he said he wanted to stand in with the boys of the council. He never said he would guarantee anything. He said nothing was said about his receiving offers of money.

The stenographic report was read by Prosecutor Tracy relative to Mr. Gill's part in it, and he denied it throughout.

He thought Mr. Tanner did say something about "checks go." He thought Lorenz said something about Morris, Lee and Miller voting for the ordinance. He thought Mr. Lorenz said something about defeating the Paragon ordinance. He thought Tanner might have said the ordinance will go through by putting up the long green.

Gill said he thought they must have given the stenographer an extra five to fix up the report.

"Was Mr. Daly ever requested to interview anyone?"

"Mr. Daly or no one else was instructed to interview anyone."

"Was the Monroe street paving discussed?"

"I think it was."

"Was the amount of money that the Warren-Scharf should pay discussed?"

"No, sir."

"Was Mr. Faskins instructed to interview parties relative to getting money?"

"He was not."

"Was anything said about Faskins not having the sand to do the work?"

"There was nothing said about Faskins at any of the meetings."

The defense re-cross-examined the witness. He testified that they all talked in a low voice, though Tanner talked very loud one or two times.

The defense called Mr. Daly, the accused.

Mr. Daly stated that he had been a member of the council for three years. He testified to attending two meetings—one at Neuendorf's store and another at Fisher's club house. He was not positive as to the time of the first meeting, about the middle of June. He testified that Messrs. Neuendorf, Tanner, Gill, Doner, Swain and Schmidt were present. He said there was no oath taken and no chairman.

Mr. Brophy followed out the examination of the state, and the witness denied any and all statements made by Mr. Swain. He said there was nothing said about any corporations, but that they just met to talk over the pending legislation or anything that might come up. He said there was no compensation spoken of or pledge taken. He testified that the meeting at Fisher's was conducted in the same manner. The two oil ordinances were talked of, but there was nothing said about charging any corporation anything. He did not hear money mentioned.

He testified that he was at Robison's office. He said he never asked Robison for money for his own vote or for money for others.

"Mr. Robison told me that he had heard certain rumors about the Consolidated going to knock out their ordinance with money. I said, 'Yes, I had heard something to that effect.' He said, 'Do you think anything can be done about it?' I said I heard that there was a man from Chicago who was going to knock out the ordinance.

"How did you come to go to Mr. Robison's office?"

"I met Jim Robison on the street and he told me that his father wanted to see me at his office."

"Was anything said about you receiving money?"

"There was not."

Court then adjourned for the day.

The Testimony Taken To-Day.

Immediately after court opened this morning, Mr. Brophy moved that the court quash the indictment and discharge the jury, on the ground that no case had been made.

In his argument Mr. Brophy stated that there had been no proof that the Pluto Oil company was a corporation, and that the ordinance introduced in the council was not legal in consequence thereof.

"You do not mean that the indictment be quashed; you attack the evidence?" said the court.

"Yes, sir, I move that the jury be instructed to return a verdict for the defendant, and that he be discharged."

"This is a new and startling feature in this case," said Mr. Barber, "and we would like to be heard."

The prosecution then proceeded to quote authorities to carry his point, that it was not necessary to prove a corporation. It is a matter which I have no question about. If it is essential, the court please, we can show the corporation, but I do not think it necessary.

The court said that it was his impression that the council could grant a franchise to a company of individuals as well as that of a corporation.

Mr. Brophy quoted the statute which he claimed regulates the case; that the Pluto Oil company had no authority to appropriate property or lay a pipe line to transport oil.

"Your statement does not satisfy the court that what you say is so," said Judge Harmon. "The question still exists, in the mind of the court, whether or not the council is not vested with the authority to grant a franchise to a company of individuals as well as a corporation. The circuit court held that the council could grant to David Robison, trustee, a franchise to construct a street railroad in the streets of Toledo, nowithstanding he fact that no corporation existed."

Mr. Tracy read a statute regulating the power of a council, giving such a body absolute and complete control of all streets and alleys thereof; that it had the power to grant franchises to individuals, companies or corporations, to lay pipe in the streets or alleys; that it might become necessary for a city to lay pipes for its own use, or a corporation to lay water pipes to its manufactory.

"That would be for the benefit of the property," said the court, "and is not a parallel case."

Mr. Tracy quoted a statute which empowered councils with the authority to grant franchises for the laying of pipe in the streets to convey light, heat and power, crystalizing the question to the point as to whether oil would come within the statute as power.

Mr. Barber quoted a supreme court decision, bearing upon the point at issue, wherein that tribunal decided that it was not necessary to prove that a corporation existed, at the time a bribe was offered or solicited.

The court held that the statute should not be viewed in the narrow province of its words 'heat and power;" that while oil did not move machinery it produced a heat to make power. The court overruled the motion and the defense noted an exception.

Judge Ritchie stated that by permission of the court the defense would interrupt Mr. Daly and put William Kirkby on the stand as he desired to leave for Columbus.

Railroad Commissioner Kirkby was sworn. He testified that he had known Mr. Daly ever since he was a child; that while he was in the railroad service Daly was his assistant; that his reputation for honesty and integrity was always first-class. He knew from his own personal knowledge that his character was above reproach.

No cross-examination was needed.

Mr. Daly then took the stand.

"Did you ever ask the Pluto Oil company in the office for money for your vote or to control the vote of any other member of the council?"

"No, sir."

"Was there anything said about money when you were at the office?"

"No, sir."

"Did you hear Mr. Gill ask for money?"

"I did not."

"Did you ever ask the Pluto Oil company or any other corporation for money to control your vote?"

"I did not."

The state then took the witness for cross-examination.

"What has been your business, Mr. Daly?" asked Mr. Tracy.

"Railroading for the last 22 years up to the first of June, when I went into business for myself."

"Mr. Daly, can you fix the date of the first meeting at Neuendorf's store?"

"I do not remember the date, as I paid no attention to it."

"Who notified you of that meeting?"

"I don't know as I was notified. Mr. Schmuhl asked me to go down with him that same evening."

"What time did you go to that meeting?"

"After the meeting."

"After what meeting?"

"I think it was the council meeting."

"Who was there when you arrived?"

"Neuendorf was there, and I think Tanner and Swain were there. There were three or four there."

"Were there any lights?"

"I think there were. Yes."

"Who came in after you arrived?"

"I think Doner came in, but would not be positive."

"Please give us the names of all present."

"I think Neuendorf, Tanner, Doner, Swain and Schmuhl were. I don't know whether Gill or Rutherford were there or not."

"In your testimony yesterday you testified that Gill was there."

"I don't just remember, but I don't think he was."

"Then if you testified yesterday that he was there, it was not correct."

"Well, I might have said yesterday that Gill might have been there, but I don't know."

"Was Jim Faskins there?"

"I did not see him."

"How many were present?"

"I could not tell. Perhaps there were five or six. I do not know positive."

"What was the first thing you heard?"

"Well, there was some discussion, but I don't know who said anything."

Daly testified that he did not know what the meeting was held for; that Doner said the object of the meeting was to get together and talk matters over as to ward legislation. He said he did not remember that they were not all in the office at one time, but that all got together once. He said there was nothing said about hanging together, and keeping the proceedings a secret; that they did not take hold of hands. He said the meeting lasted about 15 minutes. He did not know who he came away with. That they all came away together. There was nothing said about holding any other meeting.

"How were the boys to hang together unless they hold other meetings?"

"There were no other meetings."

"Did you not testify yesterday in direct examination that the boys just met to talk matters over?"

"I might have said that."

"Did you attend any other meetings?"

"Yes, sir, at Fisher's club house."

"How did you come to attend that meeting?"

"Schmuhl stopped at my house and said the boys were going out to the club house to have a little time."

"What did he say was going to be done?"

"He did not say."

"Who were there when you arrived?"

"I think Gill and Neuendorf were there."

"Who came afterwards?"

"I think Tanner, Schumhl, Manchester and Swain came."

He testified that they were around and in the summer house. He did not remember whether they were all in the summer house at one time or not. There was something said by Taylor and Swain about the price of the Warren-Scharf paving contract for Monroe street being too high. There was something said about the Pluto Oil company and Paragon ordinance.

"Did you not make a report about the railroad ordinance?"

"I did not."

"Did you not see Mr. Robison?"

"I was at his office, but I was sent for."

He did not remember saying anything about the railroad ordinance at the club house. He only attended two meetings.

"This combination or whatever you call it, is not a council committee, is it?"

"It is not."

"Give the date of the first meeting at Robison's office."

"I could not tell."

BIG FOUR STRIKE.

Violence Resorted to in Columbus.

The Cincinnati Scale Is What Is Wanted by the Railroad Boys.

Columbus, O., Oct. 13.—The strike of the Big Four switchmen culminated in several outbreaks of violence yesterday, but quiet was quickly restored by prompt action of the police.

About 10 o'clock yesterday morning the company attempted to move cars in the east yard with non-union men, but a committee of the strikers quickly gathered about the new-comers and induced them to leave the yards.

No further attempt to move cars was made until the afternoon. In the meantime Supt. Higgins discharged all yard employes now out on strike.

About 2 p. m., when several strikers boarded a switch engine in the west yards and attempted to interfere with the engineer they were at once arrested.

A committee of the Hocking Valley switchmen waited upon Supt. Robbins and demanded the Cincinnati wage scale. They were told that President Waite was out of town and agreed not to enforce the demand until he returned and heard the petition.

A GIRL HERMIT.

Ran Away From Home to New York.

She Lived Like a Tramp in the Woods.

Her Name Is Minnie Ross, and She Lived in Poughkeepsie—Her Long Tramp to This City.

New York, Oct. 13.—The last figure in the line of prisoners before Justice Voorhis in Harlem police court the other day was that of a neatly-clad girl with big, innocent-looking eyes and regular, white teeth, which glistened like ivory when she smiled. She said she was 19 years old, but appeared much younger. When arraigned she was introduced to the justice as "Blue Jeans, the Hermit of the Heights."

She has been living in a patch of woods near One Hundred and Sixty-ninth street and Amsterdam avenue for over two months. When the cold wave came it occurred to Capt. Killilea, of the Thirty-second precinct, who had heard of her case, that something ought to be done for her. So Policeman Frank Kaiser was sent out Wednesday night to look for the hermit. At 9 p. m. the policeman saw something white shining on a bush. When he approached it he saw some handkerchiefs that had been washed in a tin pan and hung out to dry. Near the bush was a high stone wall, and parallel to it, about three feet distant, the trunk of a large oak tree. Between the tree and the wall Kaiser found "Blue Jeans" sleeping.

She had made a bed of shavings and leaves piled up between the log and the wall a foot deep. An old ragged gray overcoat covered her body, while her blue hat lay over her face and shut out the light of the moon.

When awakened the girl sprang quickly to her feet. She clutched a short stick in her right hand and looked defiantly at the officer.

"What do you want?" she said.

"I want you to go to the station-house to get warm. Aren't you cold?"

The girl's teeth were chattering. She could hardly talk.

"Yes, I'm cold," she replied. "but I guess I can take care of myself. I've done it for two months and I can keep on doing it."

The policeman finally induced the girl to go with him to the station-house, where she was given a substantial supper. She had a little money in her pocket, which she said had been given to her. She was locked up on a charge of vagrancy.

In the court she presented a clean and tidy appearance. She wore a dress of dark material, the skirt of which contained many patches, and a tight-fitting, short jersey sack, closely buttoned up to her neck. Around it was knotted a blue and white polka-dot tie. Her brown hair was done up in a knot at the back of her head, and she wore a jaunty blue felt sailor hat, with a broad blue ribbon.

The girl said her correct name was Minnie Ross and that she had no home. Justice Voorhis sent her to Commissioner Blake, of the department of charities and correction.

"Blue Jeans" told a World reporter that her father and mother lived at No. 169 Main street, Poughkeepsie.

"I always had a longing to live in the city, but my parents objected," she went on. "I had worked in a millinery store. About the last of June I ran away. I didn't have a cent, but got on a New York train. I coaxed the conductor to let me ride free, but he put me off at the next station.

"The roads were so nice and the country looked so pleasant I thought I would try walking. Before I had walked very far a farm wagon came along and I asked the driver for a ride. He took me quite a long ways, and then I started to walk again. I got tired and hungry by sundown and stopped at a farmhouse and asked for something to eat. The folks questioned me, and I told them I was on my way to New York to see my sick mother. They kept me over night, and next day I started on. I got two or three rides. That night I slept in a hayfield. I made a bed of hay and went to sleep to the music of the frogs. I was awakened by the farmer in whose field I had slept, and he took me to his house and gave me something to eat. He told me that his wife needed help through harvest time and offered me $2 a week if I would stay and work, but I wouldn't do it.

"That day I walked to Tarrytown, where I got on a train again. Just as I was stepping on I felt some one catch me by the arm. I turned around and saw it was the same conductor who had put me off the train the day I ran away from home.

"'Have you got a ticket this time?' he said.

"'No, I haven't.' I replied. Then the conductor told the station agent to turn me over to the police. I was put in a room next to the waiting-room and the door was locked while the agent went for a policeman. As soon as he went away I saw that one of the windows was open, so I climbed out and ran for dear life.

"When I got to New York I found work in a millinery store and stayed there about a month. I lost my position because the lady said I ran around too much. Since then I have lived in the streets and in the woods. I got along pretty well and shouldn't have minded it only for the cold weather. Then my clothes were getting worn out, too."

"Do you want to go back to your parents?"

"I am not particular."

A RICH MAN IN PRISON.

Story of a Michigan Life Convict Who Is Worth $100,000.

Jackson, Mich., Oct. 13.—A state prison convict worth $100,000 is something of a novelty. Yet this is the case of Charles Wright, No. 4,789, a life man at the Michigan state penitentiary.

Wright is fine looking and about 30 years old. He came from Benzie county, northern Michigan, a little less than three years ago. He was one of the most prosperous business men in that section of the state, having made a large fortune in the lumber business. His partner was his brother, and the firm name was R. M. Wright & Co. They conducted extensive mills. Late in 1889 two officers of the law came to their place of business to attach certain logs in order to compel the company to pay taxes. Wright told them to attach the lumber rather than the logs, as that would not interfere with the business, while attaching the logs would close down the mills and result in disaster. Wright finally dared the officers, and said he would shoot them if they persisted in attaching the logs. In the evening the men came back and served legal process on the logs.

"You remember what I told you," said Wright, coolly.

"To ——— with you," was the only response, and Wright, drawing his six-shooter, shot both men dead.

At the prison Wright is well behaved. He occupies one of the larger and better cells. He has many delicacies to eat, including the best of butter, and he does cooking for himself on an oil stove he has in his cell. He has full charge of a big stone contract at the prison. Being an expert lumber buyer, he saves his employers thousands of dollars. His over-time money is $20 a month, and if he wants extra tobacco or something nice to eat he has no trouble about getting it. His legal expenses have been $20,000 so far, and his lawyers, who failed in the Michigan supreme court, have decided to take the case before the United States supreme court. Meantime, possibly the richest convict in the country, languishes behind the bars, with the word "life" marked against his name.

Alarm clocks, $1, warranted—Cawood's.

The British museum possesses a cup of almost fabulous value. It is of gold and enamel, is adorned with subjects from the life of St. Agnes, and cost $40,000. The sum derives most of its interest and value from the fact that it was given to Charles VI. of France, in 1391, by his uncle, Jean, duke of Berri.

CORN MILLS IN GERMANY.

They Will Have All They Can Do Grinding Exclusively American Grain.

London, Oct. 13.—Col. Chas. J. Murphy, special representative in Europe of the United States agricultural department, has written a letter from Berlin to J. C. New, the American consul here, stating that Charles Scholvin will open his new Indian corn mill this month. He will grind only American corn. He has the latest improved American machinery. This will make two corn mills in Hamburg for the exclusive grinding of the American grain. The first one erected had to work night and day, and then could not fill its orders.

Col. Murphy adds that he expects to place the corn in every part of the country. He will commence by giving gratis large quantities of the flour as samples. A large bakery is soon to be opened in Berlin, where nothing will be produced but what is made of corn. He further says that the report of the government commission to examine into the merits of corn will be issued, highly favorable to corn as human food.

THE PRINCE OF WALES

He Is Followed by a Private Detective.

Fears That His Health Is Very Unstable.

Is He Going the Way of Many Other Members of the House of Brunswick?

New York, Oct. 13.—A dispatch from London says: There is a good deal of quiet gossip in aristocratic circles as well as the clubs over the fact that the Prince of Wales, whenever he appears nowadays out of doors, is always followed at a respectful distance by a private detective.

It is no secret that the heir to the throne has come back from Hamburg rather worse than better; that he manifests an unwonted irritability and is full of strange fancies.

At the clubs there has been a good deal of quiet gossip regarding the possibility of the return of the old malady of the House of Brunswick. Between 50 and 60 has always been a critical time for the male members of this house. Some few have kept their wits, such as they were, to the end, but the greater number, as history will attest, were, or ought to have been, inmates of a private institution for the insane for the greater part of their sixth decade.

THE CHOLERA SPECTER.

Refuses to Down, Even With a Death Decrease.

European Experts Declare That There Will Be An Awful Scourge Next Year.

London, Oct. 13.—The cholera specter will not down. The news from the continent the past few days is regarded by medical men as peculiarly ominous of the march of the great death into new fields, and although he does not yet demand his victims in great numbers, it portends, it is declared, an awful slaughter next year.

The cholera expert who has been investigating the epidemic for the Times says: "It means that we have by no means seen the end of the trouble even this year, and that the seed is being sown over a vast area in Central Europe ready for the death harvest next year. To specify more particularly, Grodno means Western Russia right up to the Prussian border and beyond; Odessa means the Black sea, Littoral and the Danubian provinces; Buda Pesth means that the isolation of Galicia is an utter failure, and that Austria-Hungary is involved; Spandau, that the waterways from Berlin to the scattered cases in Holland and Belgium tell the same tale for those countries if precedent goes for anything. All those districts, as well as Poland, will be in a blaze next year, and the same thing may be said of France."

A message from a correspondent at Hamburg says that the rich old city is almost herself again. The refugees have returned, and the streets are once more alive with traffic, theaters and schools are reopened. The great death rate has left a terrible suffering as well as grief in its track, but Hamburg is one of the wealthiest towns in the world. It is not the lack of money in the form of outside contributions that she feels so much as the lack of sympathy. The manner in which New York has heaped coals of fire upon her head is most appreciatively realized. New York has done more than Berlin, Hamburg's neighbor and next of kin. The work of reform in sanitation will be pushed with tremendous energy in Hamburg in the next few months.

BALLOON AND PARACHUTE.

An Apparently Safe Method of Utilizing the Parachute.

Paris, Oct. 13.—M. Capazza, one of the most noted aeronauts of the day, has been experimenting for several months near Paris with a parachute, which at the same time forms the net for the balloon. Heretofore all parachutes employed by aeronauts were independent of the balloon, being attached, as a rule, to the bottom of the boat, but in this case the upper hemisphere of the balloon forms the dome of the parachute, and it is the latter's network which is attached to the boat.

The parachute is made entirely of silk, measuring sixty-six feet in diameter. At the top it is provided with a ventilator. When the balloonist has ascended into the air and desires to come down, all that is necessary to do is to split the silk of the balloon by means of a cord to which a knife is attached, which rips it longitudinally from side to side. The gas escapes and the balloon proper drops in a heap into the net work over the boat, while the parachute remains inflated.

M. Capazza made the ascent before a large number of spectators. When he reached an altitude of 3,600 feet he caught the cord with the knife, split the sides of the silk, the gas escaped, the parachute opened to its full size and carried the aeronaut slowly to the ground.

This clever Frenchman has certainly invented a very ingenious apparatus for navigating the air, and his successful demonstration of it proves the usefulness and safety of the new departure.—Post-Dispatch.

CHARACTER IN THE HUMAN EAR.

"Ears betoken character," said Professor Henry Thiebault, a guest of the Laclede, to a St. Louis Globe-Democrat reporter. "You never saw a poet or painter with large, coarse ears that stand out from the head like extended wings. The kind of an auricular appendage betokens coarseness of mind. A long, narrow ear, that lies flat to the head, is a sign of pugnacity. Never trust a man with a thin, wafer like ear. He was born a hypocrite, if not a thief. A very small ear betokens a trifling mind, lacking in decison. Ears set very high on the head indicates narrowness of mind. A large, well-shaped ear, that does not spread itself too much at the breeze, is indicative of generosity. Most of the world compellers had large ears, as well as well-developed noses. Although there are so many millions of people in the world no two pair of ears are alike. Each has a marked individuality."

SHERMAN IS ON TOP.

Foraker Men Are Being Snubbed.

Eb Poe and Eli Burgess Turned Down.

The Old-Time Republicans Have No Use for the Young Bloods.

Columbus, O., Oct. 13.—The Sherman-Foraker factional fight seems to be cropping out here and there in the management of the republican campaign. As is well known the Sherman republicans are in control of the campaign, and, it seems, are snubbing some of the prominent Foraker men.

Soon after the committee began work, letters were addressed to prominent republicans of forensic ability, soliciting them to give their services on the stump to their party. It is in the addressing of these invitations that the discrimination has been made.

A correspondent to-day asked State Auditor Poe if he would make any speeches in the campaign. Mr. Poe is a happy speaker and a valuable man on the stump. So his services have been in demand in former campaigns. For this reason the correspondent was surprised to hear him say: "No, I think I shall make no political speeches in this campaign."

"Why is that?"

"Well, I have not been asked to do so by the committee."

"But the speakers proffer their services, don't they?"

"No, sir; the committee sent out invitations, but I received none."

"Were there any others slighted in this way?"

"Well, yes; several that I know of. There is Eli Burgess. He is a most valuable speeker, and has done the party good service in past campaigns. He has not been invited to speak."

Burgess is reporter for the supreme court, and has been as prominently indentified with the Foraker faction as Auditor Poe. He is a close friend of Eli West, the Foraker man whom the state sinking fund commission recently elected its secretary.

West is not a soldier, and as the office had always been given to a soldier, and there were about a dozen candidates for the office who were soldiers, the G. A. R. has severely criticised Mr. Poe, who is said to have secured West's election, and it may be on account of this that the committee has not asked Mr. Poe to go upon the stump.

This does not explain the oversight in Mr. Burgess' case, however, and the general opinion is that the Sherman men have deliberately side-tracked Mr. Poe, who has been mentioned several times as a candidate for governor, and might possibly loom up as an opponent to Governor McKinley for the nomination next year should the opposition to the governor continue to grow.

THE DEACON CASE.

It Is Called in the Court at Grasse.

The Judge Holds that the Trial Must Proceed at Once.

Grasse, Oct. 13.—The suit of Edward Parker Deacon, the American, for divorce from his wife on the ground of adultery with M. Abeille, was begun to-day. Counsel for Mrs. Deacon interposed a plea to dismiss the suit on the ground that in a certain letter Deacon had implied an intention of abandonment. The judges retired to consider this point, and at 12:10 p. m., returned and announced their decision that the wife had no grounds upon which to stop the proceedings as her interpretation of the letter was not justified. The court having decided that it had jurisdiction in the case, took a recess until 3 o'clock.

A SENSATION.

A Nine Days' Wonder in a Small Town.

Facts and Details From Our Own Correspondent.

Surprised Many But Does Not Surprise Us.

Mansfield, Ohio, is not a large place, but it has certainly experienced a great sensation.

The people are not done talking about it yet, and indeed it will furnish the subject for conversation for a long time to come, as well as food for thought.

Our correspondent, C. C. Coulter, who is a prominent and influential citizen of Mansfield, and agent of the Rockford (Ill.) Silver Plate Co., has furnished us with the facts and details, which we are positive will prove most interesting to our readers.

"I have a brother, Harry E. Coulter, 21 years of age," writes Mr. Coulter, "who had never done a day's work in his life; never ran ten rods in his life—indeed could not even walk fast.

"Heart disease was his trouble. Last fall he got the grip and went down, down, down.

"Two of our best physicians treated him.

"His tongue was coated badly, had backache, urine high-colored, brick-dust sediment—worst I ever saw.

"His stomach was almost as hard as a board, in fact, we gave up all hopes of his life.

"He quit the doctors and commenced using Dr. Greene's Nervura blood and nerve remedy, and nothing else, and the third day was better. He is now better than he ever was in his life, can run and do violent exercise and not suffer in the least.

Harry E. Coulter.

"He says he never felt better in his life; in fact, this wonderful medicine, he tells me, saved his life.

"He coaxed me to take this remedy, and I was troubled something as he had been, only my heart is all right. I had been doctoring since last fall to clear up my system, but without beneficial results. I have now only used two bottles of Dr. Greene's Nervura blood and nerve remedy and feel like a new man. In fact, I am well, and I write this because I feel so grateful to the remedy for saving my brother's life and my health.

"This is the greatest medicine I ever heard of, and I am sure that if you knew my brother's condition before he commenced the use of Dr. Greene's Nervura blood and nerve remedy, the cure would much surprise you."

We do not wonder that this remarkable restoration to health is looked upon as almost a miracle in Mansfield, where, perhaps, the marvellous virtues of this remedy were until now not known, but the cure does not surprise us in the least, for it is something which is taking place constantly in our vicinity, no day, scarcely an hour, in fact, passing in which we do not learn of it curing some one who has been suffereing from nervous weakness, blood disorder, kidney or liver complaints, insomnia, malaria or stomach trouble. It is a fact that this wonderful medicine cures the sick, and it is perfectly harmless to use, being purely vegetable. Druggists keep it for $1.

It is the discovery and prescription of Dr. Greene, of 35 W. 14th street, New York, the famous specialist in curing nervous and chronic diseases, who has the largest practice among the sick of any physician in the United States, and who can be consulted free personally or by letter.

EVERY ORGANIZATION

In Toledo Invited to Turn Out on Columbus Day.

The Columbian committee are at a loss to know how any one could have misunderstood their very general invitation to every organization in Toledo, civic or military, to take part in the exercises on Labor day.

No special or personal invitations were issued to any organization, lest one should be missed, and for this reason the invitation was made general, and extended to all.

Every labor organization in the city is most cordially invited and urged to respond heartily and in large numbers.

There is no time to be lost in dispossessing the minds of laboring men of the idea that this general invitation did not extend to them.

The matter has evidently been misrepresented.

Some New Artistic Lights.

Some new lights in the local water color circles will shed their brilliancy at the coming exhibition of the Toledo Water Color society. They are all new members of the club and two are recent comers to Toledo. Miss Carrie Morgan comes from New York, where she came into prominent notice as a remarkably brilliant painter in figure work. Mr. Kent comes from Philadelphia. His forte is landscapes. Miss Anna Thorn, of this city, will add her exquisite flower pieces to the exhibit. The other four members of the society are well known and appreciated in their respective lines. The club is slowly but surely growing and some day when it is strong enough it will boom art matters in Toledo.

McKnight Must Stay in the O. P.

A special from Columbus gives the following information relative to a former Toledoan, now doing time in the O. P.:

The circuit court of this county has refused a writ of habeas corpus applied for by H. P. McKnight, a Wood county prisoner at the penitentiary. McKnight is the man who was extradited to Ohio for one crime, tried for another and sent to the penitentiary. His plea to the supreme court for a writ of habeas corpus was granted and he was discharged from the prison, but at once tried on another charge and sent back. It was for this case that he wanted a writ of habeas corpus, his application being made to Judge Stewart. The refusal of the court to grant the writ leaves McKnight a prisoner under his last conviction.

It is said that Dempsey is going to remain in Toledo and open a gymnasium.

The Chase-Bliss Nuptials.

Last evening at 8 o'clock, at the residence of the bride's parents, Mr. and Mrs. L. A. Chase, 421 Eleventh street, took place the wedding of their daughter, Myrtle Maud, to Mr. Daniel W. Bliss in the presence of about 50 invited guests. Rev. J. H. Bethards, of the Broadway M. E. church, performed the ceremony, immediately after which an elegant supper was served. Congratulations followed. The presents were very numerous, consisting of a silverware dinner set, and assortment of furniture too numerous to mention, fruit dishes, and also an elegant fruit set from her Sunday school class, which the bride values very highly. After the departure of the guests the happy couple were driven to their home at 333 Broadway. They left this morning for a short trip in Michigan among relatives. Friends wish Mr. and Mrs. Bliss many happy returns.

At the C. C. Church.

A large and well pleased audience filled the Central Congregational church last evening to enjoy the program of recitation and song and the novelty in tableaux and pantomime, termed "poses plastiques." Miss Rose Clouse opened the entertainment with an organ voluntary. Miss Eugenia Baldwin, Mrs. Miller and Mr. C. B. Lewis gave the vocal numbers, and in each instance responded to hearty recall. The selections were all pleasing and their execution perfect in the extreme.

The young ladies, whose names were published in the Bee program, were exceedingly artistic in their soft white Greek costumes and graceful to a degree of perfection in their poses and expression. Their teacher, Miss Bacon, was highly complimented by the excellence of their work. "Rock of Ages," "Jephtha's daughter" and some of the Greek tableaux were beautiful. Miss Bacon's recitations were a feature of the entertainment. She is original and pleasing in her work. A change in program will be made for the repetition this evening.

Pretty Home Wedding.

The home of Mr. and Mrs. J. M. Johnson, 427 Tenth street, was the scene of a pretty wedding last evening, their daughter, Miss Nellie, being united in marriage with Henry Hoffman.

The ceremony was performed by Rev. Hutsinpiller, of St. Paul's M. E. church, and the music was furnished by Mr. Peter Germaine.

The bride wore handsome pearl gray silk and her flowers were La France roses.

The floral decorations were artistic, and consisted chiefly of roses and smilax. The table decorations were of the same flowers. Dainty refreshments were served, and the happy couple received the hearty congratulations of the company very gracefully. The gifts were many and beautiful and bespoke the high esteem in which the young people are held.

Miss Johnson has been connected with the art store of Miss Bissell for some time. Several fine paintings in oil are among her presents. Mr. and Mrs. Hoffman went directly to their own pretty home, on Washington street, furnished ready to receive them. The best wishes of a host of friends abide with them.

THE W. H. M. S.

Of the First Baptist Church Remember Their First Missionary.

The meeting opened with a paper on the life of Mr. Carey, read by Mrs. Phelps.

Miss Ethel Bentley next read the history of the destruction of the buildings in which Mr. Carey had his papers.

A duet was sung by Mrs. Scarguhl and Miss Sadie Featherstone, and Miss Phelps recited a poem entitled, "Carey's English Flowers."

A paper on Carey's last days was given by Mrs. Fulton, Miss Phelps sang a solo, and the meeting closed with a benediction by Rev. Sloan.

The exercises were very interesting and impressive, and much credit is due Mr. Phelps for the arrangement of so excellent a program.

COLUMBIAN FAIR.

The Church of the Sacred Heart Celebrates.

Last evening the Columbian fair opened auspiciously at Weber's hall under the auspices of the Church of the Sacred Heart. The program was opened by Father Muchlenbach with an address on the discovery of America; the school children sang "Columbia, Gem of the Ocean," as an opening chorus; "The Flag That Bears the Stripes and Stars" was rendered by the church choir. The young men appeared in a tableaux representing the landing of Columbus. A quartet composed of Messrs. Muller, Selzler, Roth and Muller rendered a humorous selection. Fritz Wohlleb played a guitar solo in a finished manner. Nettie Munch, a bright little lady, recited "I'm Going to Write to Papa" nicely. Mrs. Wilhelm and Miss Katherine Weber gave an enjoyable instrumental duet. The program was closed by Mr. L. Zelzler and Miss Bolgit in a selection. P. J. Mettler was chairman and Mr. J. B. Poulin was musical director. The fair continues this and to-morrow evenings.

The Markets To-Day.

The receipts of wheat to-day in Toledo are 10,892 bu. in excess of the corresponding Thursday in 1891.

The receipts of wheat at seven principal western points are 462,366 bu. in excess of this Thursday in 1891. The northwest receipts are 142,138 bu. larger, and at five other points 320,228 bu. larger than in 1891.

The wheat markets east and west are reported dull and inactive. English markets opened encouragingly, but the heavy receipts and reported rains in Kansas were more than an equivalent for it, and prices were slow and weak. The fluctuations have been very narrow and without significance. Near the close the market was a shade firmer on report of a better Liverpool market.

Corn has been dull also, and declined, but regained a part of it at close.

Liverpool wheat market is reported closing higher.

In New York October wheat closed at 79c; December at 81 1-2c; May at 88c a. October oats, 34 1-2c. Holiday yesterday.

In Chicago October wheat closed at 73 1-8c; December at 76c, and May at 81 3-8c, a gain on each of 1-8c. October corn at 42 1-4c unchanged; May at 46 1-4, a loss of 1-4c.

In Toledo only a moderate business was reported in wheat futures. It has been a dull and uninteresting market. Opening prices were lower and declined slightly, but regained a part of the loss. At the close October was 1-4 lower; November 1-4; December and May 3-8; October sold at 74 1-4; November at 75; December sold at 76 1-2 to 76 1-4 and closed at 76 3-8; May at 82 1-2 to 82 1-4 and closed at 82 3-8.

Cash wheat was not very active. Seaboard orders were below the market; No. 2 soft sold at 74 1-4, a loss of 1-4; No. 3 soft at 67 1-2 and at 67 1-4 Wabash; December sold at 70 1-4; No. 4 soft at 61; rejected No. 1 at 60 to 63; No. 2 at 50; mixed No. 2 at 70 3-4; No. 3 at 64; No. 2 white at 72. Rye, No. 3 at 51.

Clover seed was active. Large sales and decidedly higher. Prime for cash, no sales; October at $6.45; November at $6.55@6.47 1-2, closing higher; December at $6.55, closing higher; January, $6.67 1-2@6.60, closing $6.60; March at $6.70@6.75, closing at $6.75; No. 2 at $6.25@6.30.

The export clearances yesterday at four Atlantic ports were: Wheat 161,975 bu., and flour to an aggregate of 280,000 bu.

English markets are a shade higher for wheat and slightly lower for corn.

New silver cups, $1, $1.50, $2.25. Cawood.

The registration places will be open until 9 o'clock to-night.

Ashley's managers are afraid to permit him to debate with Byron Ritchie.

It is said Bradley and Touvelle, of Fulton, are sorrowful because Ashley will not turn over as much "long green" as they want.

Matt Quay says he does not know how to bet on the presidential election this year, and that he shall take no part in the campaign.

A caricature of Gen. Stuart, of confederate fame, riding to battle in 1862, is a campaign argument of the New York Recorder in 1892.

Tuesday was first registration day in New York and the number of registrations was more than 100,000, the largest first day's report ever recorded. A full vote in New York signifies an immense democratic majority.

The republican campaign committee complains because Ashley declines to hand over the "long green" in large piles. He is very sensible. He remembers how the committee robed him two years ago and used his money to elect the county ticket.

The Quaker dam, in New York city, is not a Friendly oath, but a wall in process of building, which is to surround a water supply sufficient for 10,000,000 people. It will be as high as the towers of Brooklyn bridge, a quarter of a mile in length, and will cost over $4,000,000.

Bishop Brown, of the African Methodist Episcopal church, has declared for Cleveland and advises his people to support the democratic ticket this year. Bishop Brown resides in Washington and hitherto has been a staunch republican. This notable political conversion will have disastrous effect to the republicans all over the country.

"Every Vote Needed," is the caption of a rallying editorial in the Cincinnati republican Times-Star. The T. S. s right. The republicans will need all their votes, and more, to carry Ohio this year. Not only will Col. W. A. Taylor be elected secretary of state, but the democratic electoral ticket is very likely to be elected. This is a democratic year.

Republican managers of the Pennsylvania campaign are worried with apprehension that 50,000 of their voters in the very citadel of protection, the city of Philadelphia, are too poor to pay a poll tax. The fat-fryers fund will be drawn upon in their behalf, but the question will go round, why is this thus? Why isn't protected labor able to command the pittance?

The figures of the census bulletin on New York city factories show a healthy increase, as they naturally would, except famine, war or pestilence came to blight our great expansive country and check its industrious and inventive people in their pursuits. As a whole, we are doing wonders in spite of hindrances, but that is no reason why we should submit to hindrance

Byron Ritchie is making a splendid campaign. He is a good organizer and campaigner and enthuses the workers wherever he goes. He will have 1,800 majority in Ottawa, will carry Wood and hold Ashley level in Lucas. It is very likely that "M. C." will be added to Ritchie's name after election. His nomination is everywhere conceded to be very strong.

A deuce of a time there will be, sorting out the "work-people" for the Dollar ride to the World's Fair, if Col. Shepard's advertisement for himself and his crazy newspaper takes effect. It will be a great affair for the peasantry of the country to get a ride, once in the century, over the road their taxes have helped to build and maintain—a charity ride through the generosity of a son-in-law of the Vanderbilt millions. Quote an appropriate text, please.

Murat Halstead calls Judge Cooley a "constitutional crank," Judge Gresham a "presidential crank" and ex-Attorney General McVeagh a "professional crank." Shades of republican virtue, what kind of a crank is Halstead? and what crank appellation will he give ex-Governor Jacob Dolson Cox, of Cincinnati, the stalwart republican, the brave general, the distinguished jurist, the able statesman who has just declared for Cleveland?

This is what Gen. Sickles said of Cleveland's pension record in a public speech in Utica in 1888:

Now as to President Cleveland's record in behalf of the soldiers. They charge that he has vetoed a good many pension bills. So he has. I have read his views. I am a soldier. I love my soldiers. Had I been president and a congress had passed such bills for my soldiers, I should have vetoed every one of them, too. They were mostly all frauds and shams, and I had no frauds under me. Any right-minded man, sworn to discharge his duty, would have signed these vetoes as President Cleveland did.

The republicans show great fear of the result in November when they rush into the supreme court of the United States with a motion to declare the Michigan electoral law unconstitutional. The Michigan legislature did what the constitution of the United States contemplates—provided the manner of choosing the presidential electors. So clearly constitutional is the law that the republican supreme court of Michigan sustained it. Except from motives of fear of the electoral vote in other states the republicans would not express their weakness by carrying this matter to Washington.

IN OCTOBER.

"October, orchard of the year." How the earth revels in thy perfectness. Like "a last, sweet smile from the dead summer's face," a tender goodby look, after we thought her soul had fled the earth, the warm, blue, sunny days come to us. The brilliant skies are veiled with a soft haze into which the far hilltops melt away, like the misty peaks of the delectable mountains that guard the Holy City of Promise—and of unearthly vision.

What procession of color, what purple of grape and plum, what flame of maple and yellow of butternut, what green and gold and crimson of apple, what russet tints on the pear, what deep dyes of all hues in the flaunting dahlias, what burning sun flowers with rich brown hearts, what grasses, green as June or dull and gray as Novemeber, according as sun and frost and dews determine. What emerald tint in the newly-sown fields, token of another season's wealth. What nutty odors in the air, what floating of bright and vivid banners in the stately forest battalions. What a delight just to live, breathe and see and feel and know—and understand, ever so dimly.

How weak and small appear all our attempts at adornment and decoration, when great Nature takes the pencil and brush. How insignificant seem our little worries over the empty husks of earthly attainment, when this beauty of earth and air and sky enfolds us. What if stocks go up or go down, the blue bay waters bathe their smooth mosaic of pebbles just the same; the woodland path shows its last pale, pink roses and the summer birds fling their farewell love songs back to us as they sail away into the south. There is healing balm in the woods and fields, in the sun and the clouds, in the air and the touch of the earth to our tired feet.

A wiry richness in the atmosphere
Of apples ripe, and honey-dripping grapes,
And newly-fallen leaves steeped in the sun;
The clip of knives in yellow cornfields near
And in the woodland, flitting fairy shapes
Whose noiseless feet scarce touch the mosses brown—
A wind upon the hilltops, sweeping down
With whispers of a change but just begun.

A golden dream in the warm afternoon—
A country lane with pasture fields each side;
A winding creek with grassy banks o'er grown,
And asters, pale and lovely as a bride;
And soft foreshadowed in the cloudless sky,
How sweetest raptures finish with a sigh.

THE COUNTRY IS DEMOCRATIC.

Since 1872, the democrats have polled a majority of the popular vote of the country, with the single exception of the Garfield and Hancock campaign. The Philadelphia Record quotes the tabulated figures to show this, from the New York Tribune almanac, and goes on further to furnish proof that the majority of the people of the country, as shown by the ballot, are democrats:

Since 1872 the republicans have elected a majority to the popular branch of congress only twice—to the Forty-seventh and to the Fifty-first congresses. Thus in three of the last four presidential contests the democrats polled a majority of the popular vote of the nation as against the republicans, and of the last nine congresses the democrats had a majority and chose the speaker in seven and the republicans in two.

In 1890, the important congressional election following the last presidential contest, the republicans were defeated by the largest majority ever cast against any party in the history of the republic. They elected less than one-third of the popular branch of congress, and the off-year elections of 1891 gave New York a democratic governor by nearly 50,000; Massachusetts a democratic governor by 7,000 and Iowa a democratic governor by 7,500, while the other formerly strong republican states of the west and northwest which held elections last year, prove in every instance that they are no longer reliably republican.

But for the manufacture of six new pocket states, both branches of congress would to-day be democratic, and nearly two-thirds of the states would have democratic governors. As it is, with six republican governors added by the pocket states, the democrats have 24 governors and the republicans 20, two of which were stolen in New Hampshire and Connecticut. Another was stolen in Nebraska, but the supreme court halted the theft by restoring to office the governor the people had elected.

Thus the republicans have been the minority party in the nation in three of the last four presidential contests, and in seven of the nine last congresses; and the elections of last year which gave success to the entire democratic tickets in New York and Iowa and to a democratic governor in Massachusetts, clearly indicate a large democratic majority in 1892 unless there has been a revulsion in public sentiment.

This showing causes one to pause and consider if any reform is necessary in the method of determining elections. We proudly say, "In our country the will of the majority rules." But it is not true.

TO RENEW ACQUAINTANCE

And Cement Friendship, the Purpose of the Yellow Reception.

The Christian fellowship and hearty good will so difficult to engender in large and wealthy congregations, are among the chief characteristics of St. John's M. E. church, and to the ladies of the church is due much of the credit for this happy state of affairs.

As in all large churches, there are constant additions being made, people coming in from other towns, or other parts of the city, and coming to this church, and to become acquainted with them all is very difficult.

This problem, which has troubled pastors and members of many large congregations, was solved in a happy manner yesterday by means of the yellow reception given in the parlors of St. John's, its purpose being the renewal of old acquaintances and the forming of new ones.

The parlors were artistically decorated in bright golden color, and looked like a beam of sunshine.

The windows were hung with yellow tissue curtains, the chandeliers were draped with the same, and from the center of each were suspended tiny golden pumpkins.

The acme of tasteful decoration was reached in the dining room. At one end of this room goldenrod was banked, and the windows and chandeliers were draped the same as the reception room.

Small tables were grouped about, covered with snowy linen, with yellow center cloth and floral piece of nasturtions.

The center piece was a table hung with smilax, upon which was a large bouquet of nasturtions, and a tall piano lamp with yellow silk shade.

The dining room committee wore yellow aprons and tiny badges of the same hue, and served delicious pumpkin pie, yellow as gold, glasses of milk (the real article), and creamy reception flakes.

The reception committee was composed of Mesdames Fish, Davis, Tanner, Callard, Skeldon, Harris, Jones and Bartlett.

As gracefully and cheerily as they would have welcomed invited guests to their own homes, did they greet the strangers who responded to the invitations yesterday.

The table committee were Mesdames Churchill, chairman; Jones, Bartlett, Hirth and St. John.

Mesdames Herman, Van Gorder and Groves, formed the kitchen committee.

The reception was from 3 to 5 o'clock, and the parlors were thronged constantly with guests.

A prettier and pleasanter event than this yellow reception could not be imagined.

THE DAY OF DAYS.

The Columbian Celebration an Assured Success.

Arrangements Made for the Naval Display.

Col. Bunker Says There Will Be 15,000 People in the Parade—Meeting of Arrangements Committee To-Night.

The effort of an evening paper to injure the Columbus day celebration by arousing antagonism among the labor organizations will be without avail.

The labor organizations received no special invitations for the simple reason that no special invitations were issued.

All societies, civic and military, received a general invitation through the press, and so far all have accepted.

Creed, class or color will have nothing to do with the celebration.

It will be a day when Americans will join hand in hand in celebrating a glorious event.

The society or organization that is not American enough or patriotic enough to turn out on that day, if their laws permit, has no interest in the parade.

The labor organizations of Toledo will be in line in the great parade.

"I wish you would say for me that no special invitations have been issued or will be issued," said Col. Bunker to a Bee this morning. "We want all the labor organizations in the parade, and we would like to hear from them soon, so as to give them their places."

"How many do you estimate will participate in the parade, Colonel?"

"Well, I place the number at 15,000. There may be more. St. Mary's Catholic societies will turn out 1,000 alone, and the Polish people, I am informed, will turn out a thousand strong."

The Fireworks.

Chairman John E. Gunckel yesterday closed arrangements for several hundred pieces of fireworks.

The naval display and attendant fireworks promises to be the grandest affair ever witnessed here.

Prof. J. E. Lee, representing the Consolidated Fireworks company of New York, was here yesterday and made a contract for $450 worth of fireworks. There will include such pieces as Crosses of Malta, Trees of Liberty, American Eagles, Sunburst of Montezuma, with 16 rockets each, and a number of night shells to be thrown from 9-inch mortars.

Capt. Chas. Hubbard has been appointed chairman of the naval display. He will donate several tugs and is hustling like a good fellow.

Capt. Chas. Klauser will have charge of the boats. The largest vessel in the harbor will be secured and rigged out from top to bottom with Chineses lanterns, and from her deck 50 members of the O. Y. C. will operate the fireworks. The largest pieces will be fired from two scows moored in the middle of the river near the Pennsylvania bridge and will be in charge of an expert from Cincinnati.

It will be a big event for Toledo. There will be thousands from the surrounding towns and the business men of Toledo cannot afford to have another river carnival to account for.

All members of the committee on arrangements should attend the general meeting this evening.

THE T. U. T. A.

Held Two Meetings in the Toledo Business College.

The Thirty Members Up Stairs Knew Nothing of the Twenty-five or More Who Were Meeting Down Stairs.

Last night was the regular meeting night of the Toledo Union Temperance association, at the Toledo Business college, and they literally took possession of the building, about 30 of the members going upstairs and holding a meeting, while a like number, not knowing of the meeting upstairs, held a session on the ground floor.

Down stairs, Rev. W. C. Hopkins, president of the association, presided, and Mrs. Maud Dutton acted as secretary, in the absence of Mr. Tambling, who was attending the second story session.

About 25 societies were represented, and the principal business was the amendment of the constitution relative to dues.

Mr. Hopkins tendered his resignation, which was not accepted.

The chief discussion was on the efforts being made by the labor organizations to enforce the observance of the Sunday law.

The Clerks' Mutual Protective union, and Barbers' union, No. 5, are making special efforts in this direction, and it was the sense of the meeting that they should receive the encouragment and co-operation of the association.

A resolution to this effect was adopted, and a committee of seven, with Prof. M. H. Davis as chairman, was appointed to act with the labor organizations in this work.

Mrs. Kate Napier was elected treasurer of the association to fill the vacancy caused by the resignation of Mrs. Bartlett.

AMICABLY SETTLED

Louis Sharp, the St. Louis Grain Man,

Comes to Toledo and Finds that th Grading Trouble Was a Mistake All Around.

The little matter of grain inspection at Toledo, in which St. Louis parties were interested, has been amicably settled. The chief inspector at St. Louis and a representative of Louis Sharp Commission company, the dissatisfied firm, were here yesterday, as stated in the Bee. Louis Sharp himself arrived this morning and was seen by a Bee on 'change. Mr. Sharp had threatened to send no more wheat to Toledo if the matter of grading in his case was not remedied.

"Well, did you settle the difficulty?" questioned the Bee.

"We did," answered Mr. Sharp. "We find it was a mistake all around, and everything was fixed up satisfactorily to all concerned. We are very much pleased with the courteous manner in which we have been treated by the directors of the exchange and Toledo gentlemen. Our wheat will continue to come to your city."

You can't afford to laugh, dear girls,

Unless your mouth is pink and sweet,

COUNCILMAN DALY.

"Was it in May or June?"

"I would not swear to that."

"Was it before or after the club house meeting?"

"I could not say."

"What took place at Robison's office?"

"Robison said he understood there was an effort being made to defeat the ordinance. I said yes, that there was some opposition among the boys. He said he understood the Consolidated was going to put up $10,000 to defeat the ordinance. I said I had heard something to that effect, but did not believe it."

The witness said there was something said about votes, but that he did not offer to give him ten votes.

Relative to the meeting at the Pluto Oil company, he said Mr. Tanner came after him and that Tanner and himself were in the office twice, although he did not remember the day. He stood at the door of Mr. Lorenz's office. He did not remember the first thing that was said; that Tanner went over and had some conversation with Lorenz.

As to the conversation between Mr. Tanner and Mr. Lorenz, there was some talk about long green, checks, etc. He did not remember anything about the conversation between Tanner and Lorenz, as reported by the stenographer concealed in the cellar. He did not remember making any of the statements credited to him. He heard $5,500 mentioned between Lorenz and Tanner, but he had no conversation about money whatever. He did not hear all that was said, because he knew it was all a game of bluff and that he told Tanner so.

"That what was a bluff?"

"Why, this business about getting the boys to their office. That they were just bluffing."

"What did Tanner say?"

"Why, he said to come down, that Lorenz wanted to see me about their ordinance. That they wanted Gill and I to vote for it, as we were always opposed to it; I told him that I did not want to have anything to do with them people; that our family had had trouble with them and I did not want to have anything to do with them. Tanner came out to the ball game, and after it was over I went with him. He said if I would not go for my sake, go for his; that he had promised Lorenz to get me to come down; that Lorenz was a good friend of his and took insurance from him, and could do him good. I went and that is how I came to get into it."

"Well, you have not said what you meant by bluff."

"Oh, yes; I said something about bluff. There was something said about Lorenz going to do something for the boys, and I said that was just a bluff."

Mr. Tracy read from the stenographic report of the interview and Daly continued to state that he did not remember anything about it.

"Do you remember saying that we might as well go?"

"Yes, I remember saying to Tanner to come on, not to stay and make a monkey of himself."

Witness testified that he did not say six words all the time while he was there.

"Did you not say, 'come on, don't make a monkey of yourself?'"

"Yes, I might have said that."

"Did Mr. Tanner say that it would take $5,500 and $5,499.99 would not go?"

"I heard something said about $5,500 and the long green, but I do not know whether Mr. Lorenz or Mr. Tanner said it."

Daly testified that he went to the telephone and called for Gill, on Tanner's request, who thought it would be best to get Gill and try and get the thing fixed up. He stated that he and Tanner went down to Gill's office because Tanner wanted to get the matter fixed and try and persuade Gill not to oppose the ordinance. Gill was not at his office, but they met him on the street; that Gill called him to one side and wanted to know what was up, and that he told Gill that he guessed Tanner would have him (Gill) to go with them down to Lorenz's office and try and fix up the ordinance. They went to the Pluto oil office and had some conversation. He did not remember whether he stopped in any place after they left the office the second time.

"Did you stop in at the office of Pliny Watson & Co.?"

"No, sir."

"Did you not tell the jury that you came down to go to Pliny Watson's office?"

"Yes, sir, but I did not go there."

He could not give any of the conversation of the last interview. He did not hear much of it, only a word now and then. He did not remember saying anything.

"What did you go back for?"

"Well, I just went back with the boys, but did not hear enough of what was said to know what they were talking about."

The witness could not hear anything that was said; that he was out in the front room most of the time. To every question put as to the conversation that ensued Daly answered that he did not hear it.

"Now, Mr. Daly, in justice to yourself and others, answer this carefully, as it is important. Did you not say, 'Mr. Lorenz, you can have that ordinance put through for $5,500, and not a cent less?'"

"No, sir; I did not."

"Now, again, for your own protection, answer whether you said that 'there are our 11 votes and with your four will make 15, which will take the ordinance off the table and pass it right enough?'"

"No, sir; I said no such a thing."

The witness testified that he knew there was some kind of a scheme on foot, that the first he heard of it was at the council chamber; that all of the conversation he heard was "pipe," "$5,500," "long green" and "checks."

He said he did not say anything about going to strike the Northwestern Gas company for $40,000.

"Was the talk so low you could not hear it?"

"Yes, sir, it was. At times I could only catch a part of what was said."

"Did you sit down any of the time?"

"No, sir."

"Why not? Were there any chairs?"

"I did not look."

"Why did you stand?"

"Because I wanted to."

"Then you would rather walk around than pay attention to what was going on?"

"I did."

Court recessed until 2 o'clock.

This Afternoon's Testimony.

When court convened at 2 o'clock this afternoon, Mr. Daly was called to the stand

"What did Mr. Tanner say to you when he found you at the ball game that day? Did you wait until the game was out?"

"I did; yes, sir."

"That's all."

In response to questions put by Mr. Brophy the witness testified that Mr. Robison sent for him; that Gill, Tanner and himself went to the Pluto office together, but that Gill stopped some place on the way and arrived late.

The defense then called Councilman Neuendorf.

The witness testified that he has lived in Toledo 30 years, and had been in the feed business for 12 months. He had attended meetings of councilmen outside of the council meetings. One was held at his store during the last of May. It was the night after forming the new council. Swain suggested that it would be a good idea to gather and talk matters over about legislation in our different wards.

"Was anything said about charging corporations?"

"No, sir."

"What legislation was talked of?"

"Well, Swain said that the young fellows had been knocked out during the last year, and could only get legislation through if the older fellows wanted it."

He testified that none of the ordinances were talked of at that meeting. He testified that the next meeting was held at Tanner's office, and that there was nothing said about charging any corporation for legislation. He said there was no chairman, no one instructed to see about betting money. He stated that at the second meeting Tanner wanted assistance on some legislation in his office that would be of interest to his father.

The next meeting he said was held at Rutherford's store in June; that at this meeting there were present Schmuhl, Tanner, Rutherford, Manchester, Taylor and himself.

At this meeting they discussed the Monroe street traveners; that either Rutherford or Taylor brought it up; that he said they had a customer out Monroe street who wanted as built.

At the club house meeting he said: "What do you suppose?" says I. "What?" says they. "Machen made me a pretty good offer," says I. "What is it?" says they. "Why," says I, "Machen offered me $25,000 in stock to help pass the Pluto ordinance. Gill, I think, said that 'I did not want to have anything to do with those fellows.' I said what do you take me for; I am not going to take any of their stuff."

Witness did not remember whether there was anything further said about the ordinance, but did not think there had been. They just had a big time. He had the boxing-gloves on with one or two of the boys.

At the meeting, he said, Felker said he wanted the boys to pass the Pluto ordinance as the Lorenz boys were friends of his. He said Daly was not appointed to solicit money from any corporation, neither did he make any reports of an interview with any corporation. He stated that there was nothing said about assessing the Pluto Oil company $5,500, or about assessing the Paragon Oil company, or the Northwestern Gas company. He did not recollect that money was spoken of. He never was at Lorenz's office, but was requested to go.

"Who requested you to come?"

"I object," said Mr. Barber.

"We want to show," said Mr. Brophy, "that instead of the defendant soliciting a bribe, they were solicited."

"That makes no difference," said the court, "the prosecuting witnesses are not on trial."

"Did Mr. Machen offer you money to vote for their ordinance?"

"He did."

"When was it?"

"Well, he came to my store and said that he wanted to do something for the boys; that he did not want us to work for nothing; that he wanted me to vote for his ordinance. I told him that I could not vote for it because I was pledged to Hartford. I went to Hockenberger's and got my supper. On coming out I met Machen, and he began talking about the ordinance and offered me $25,000 in Pluto stock. I said, 'don't you know that this is a penitentiary offense, and you don't suppose I am going to lay myself liable?'"

"Did he offer you money?"

"Yes, sir; two weeks ago he offered me $500, and I told him I would have nothing to do with his ordinance."

The state then cross-examined.

"Was there only one meeting at your store?"

"That is all."

"Will you swear that there was only one meeting at your store?"

"Well, it does run through my mind that I gave my key to Swain one time for some of the boys who wanted to go there and talk over the legislation."

"Where was you?"

"I was at the council."

"Was Faskins at the first meeting?"

"I think he was."

"What was Faskins doing there?"

"He had just as much right there as anyone there."

He testified that Schmuhl, Doner, Daly and Taylor were not there. He said there was nothing said about another meeting. The only thing was that if anything came up that the boys needed any help or any legislation they could let each other know.

There was nothing said about taking in any new members; that Felker's name was not mentioned.

At the meeting at Tanner's office, he testified that Faskins and Schmuhl were not there. He was there all the time and he heard all that was said.

"Did not Doner say to Felker that you know what the object of this meeting is and did Felker say he did not know; and did not Doner say that the object was to get together and talk matters over, and that certain corporations were willing to put up something for legislation?"

"If that was said, I don't remember. But Tanner and I stepped out to get a cigar when they began talking about those things."

Neuendorf was telling of the club house meeting when the Bee went to press.

A farewell reception was tendered to Miss Josie B. Currier by pupils of Prof. Frank W. Kibbe's dancing academy last evening, prior to her departure for Columbus. There were about 150 guests present and the occasion was highly enjoyable. Miss Currier has been an able assistant at the academy for two seasons past and she will be greatly missed by her pupils and friends, who as a token of esteem, presented her with a gold necklace last evening.

THE OPENING DAY

Of the Red Ribbon Meet at the Toledo Driving Park.

Beautiful Weather, Fine Horses and Enthusiastic Crowds Features of the Races.

If the managers of the Toledo Driving Park could have arranged the weather for themselves it could not have been more perfect. An extension of the unlooked for warmth and sunlight is fervently requested, and the weather man will be conciliated as never before.

The track was never in better condition, and horsemen present say they have seen nothing to compare with it this season.

Perhaps better horses have never been seen in Toledo. It was hardly expected that the moderate purses offered would bring as good horse flesh, but they are here, and the races will be sufficiently exciting to satisfy the most critical.

Corbett's sparring match with Prof. Donaldson will come off Saturday, and all the sports and a good many people who have never been known by that name will be on hand.

Notes have been sent to the Exposition office every day since the announcement that Corbett would be here, was made, asking for reserved seats, and the indications are that nearly as many ladies as gentlemen will be present.

Scientific pugilism is at present the popular fad, and people who take up fads, of whatever nature they may be, will swell the crowd of spectators who will go to see James J. Corbett, the world's champion.

TO LOVERS.

Ho, ye lovers, list to me:—
Warning words have I for thee:—
Give ye heed, before ye wed,
To this thing Sir Chaucer said:
"Love wol not be constrained by maistrie,
When maistrie cometh, the god of love anon
Beteth his winges, and farewel, he is gone!"

Other poets knew as well,
And the same sad story tell.
Hark ye, heed ye, while ye may,
What the worldly Pope doth say:
"Love, free as air, at sight of human ties
Spreads his light wings and in a moment flies."

This, Sir Hudibras, brave knight,
Faithful lover, constant wight,
From his lady's lips did hear;
Mark ye, eke, the warning clear:

"Love is too generous t' abide
To be against its nature ty'd;
For where 'tis of itself ty'd;
It breaks loose when it is confin'd."

Ho, ye lovers, shall I tell
How through life with Love to dwell.
Spite of all the poets say?
Harken to the easy way:—
Strive to bind him not, but see
That the little god binds thee.

—Ellis Butler, in the New England Magazine.

HE SAW HIS FRIEND'S GHOST.

A very remarkable story is told by Col. H., a British army officer, which was recently verified in all its essential points by the Psychical Research society, of which the well-known Prof. Sidgwick, of Cambridge, is president, says the Baltimore Herald. This society is composed of scientific men of established reputation. Its prominent representatives in this country are Prof. William James, of Harvard, and Dr. Hodgson, of Boston. The case in question is but one of many that have been investigated by the society, but it is more interesting than the others because of the excellent reputation of the narrator, who writes over his signature, and because of the various incidents that multiply the evidence in support of its truth. The story tells how Maj. A. Poole, of the Royal Artillery, who was killed at the battle of Lang's Neck, in the Transvaal, reported his own death in London to his friend, Col. H., many hours before the telegraphic dispatches announced that the battle had been fought. Col. H. begins his story by stating that he is not a believer in ghosts, spirit manifestations or esoteric Buddhism. He formed a friendship with Maj. Poole 23 years ago, when they were both subalterns, and their intercourse continued up to the time of the Transvaal war, when Poole was ordered out upon the staff. The narrator's story reads in part as follows:

"The Transvaal war was at its height. One night, after reading for some time in the library of the club, I had gone to my rooms late. It must have been nearly 1 o'clock when I turned into bed. I had slept, perhaps, some six hours or so when I awoke with a start. The gray dawn was stealing in through the windows, and the light fell sharply and distinctly on the military chest of drawers that stood at the further end of the room, and which I carried about with me everywhere during my service. Standing by my bed, between me and the chest of drawers, I saw a figure, which, in spite of the unwonted dress—unwonted, at least, to me—and of a full black beard, I at once recognized as that of my old brother officer.

"He had the usual Kharki coat worn by officers on active service in Eastern climates; a brown leather strap, which might have been the strap of his field service glass, crossed his breast. A brown leather girdle, with a sword attached on left side and revolver on the right, passed around his waist. On his head he wore the ordinary white pith helmet of the service. I noticed all these particulars in the moment that I started from sleep and sat up in bed looking at him. His face was pale, but his black eyes shone as keenly as when, a year and a half before, they had looked at me as he stood with one foot on the hansom bidding me adieu.

"Fully impressed for the brief moment that we were stationed together at C. in Ireland or somewhere, and thinking I was in my barrack room I said: 'Hello, Poole! Am I late for parade?' Poole looked at me steadily and replied: 'I'm shot.'

"'Shot,' I exclaimed, 'Good God! how and where?'

"'Through the lungs,' replied Poole, and as he spoke his right hand moved slowly up the breast until the fingers rested upon the right lung.

"'What are you doing?' I asked.?

"'The general sent me forward,' he answerd, and the right hand left the breast to move slowly up to the front, pointing over my head to the window, and at the same moment the figure melted away. I rubbed my eyes to make sure I was not dreaming and sprang out of bed.

"I felt sure that my old friend was no more, and what I had seen was only his apparition. But yet how account for the voice, the ready and distinct answers? That I had seen a spirit, certainly something that was not flesh and blood, and that I had conversed with it were alike indisputable facts. But how to recondile these apparent impossibilities? The thought disquieted me, and I longed for the hour when the club would open and I could get a chance of learning from the papers any news from the seat of war in the Transvaal. The hours passed feverishly. I was first at the club that morning and snatched greedily at the first newspaper. No news of the war whatever.

"I passed the day in a more or less unquiet mood, and talked over the whole circumstance with an old brother officer, Col. W. He was as fully impressed with the apparition as I was.

"The next morning I was again a solitary member of the club, and seized with avidity the first paper that came to my hand. This time my anxiety was painfully set at rest, for my eyes fell at once upon the brief lines that told of the battle of Lang's Neck, and on the list of killed, foremost among them all being poor Poole. I noted the time that the battle was fought, calculated it with the hour at which I had seen the figure and found that it almost coincided. From this simple fact I could only surmise that the figure had appeared to me in London almost at the moment that the fatal bullet had done its work in the Transvaal.

"Two questions now arose in my mind: First, as to proof that poor Poole happened to wear that particular uniform at the time of his death, and whether he wore a beard, which I myself had never seen him wear. Second, whether he had met his death in the manner indicated, namely, by a bullet through the right lung. The first facts I established beyond dispute about six months afterward through an officer who was at the battle of Lang's Neck, and who had been invalided. He conformed every detail."

The narrator adds that the second fact was confirmed by an old brother officer who went to the Transvaal with Poole, and who, in answer to a question as to how Poole was shot, replied: "Just here," placing his hand over his right lung. The Psychical Research society, in its investigation of this case, finds from the London Gazette that the battle in which Maj. Poole was killed began, according to Gen. Elley's dispatch, at 9:30 a. m., January 28, 1881. The first account of the battle appeared in the Times, Telegraph and Daily News of Saturday, January 29,1881, with "no list of casualities." The first announcement of Maj. Poole's death was in a telegraph dispatch from the Transvaal, dated January 28, and received by the secretary of state for war in London on the 29th. The society concludes, from these facts and from an examination of the persons with whom the narrator talked immediately after his experience, that the apparition appeared to him about the time of Maj. Poole's death, and certainly before the news of that event reached London.

ABOUT PEOPLE.

Mr. George Fred Williams, a young Massachusetts democrat who flew more or less high during the last session of congress, is honored with a renomination.

Mrs. Taylor, the widow of the much lamented author and former American minister to Germany, Bayard Taylor, has written a particularly clever cook book which is to be brought out immediately. Mrs. Taylor, by birth and training a German, is as skilled in foreign and American cookery as she is in letters, and long ago proved to her husband's friends the possibility of combining the gifts of a notable housewife with the charm of an accomplished lady.

At the head of the C. L. S. C. class roll of '96 stands the name of Rutherford B. Hayes. The ex-president undertaking a four years' course of reading at 70 years of age cannot be said to belong to that large class of Chautauquans deprived of educational privileges of youth. Trained early in the classics, a course in Kenyon College, Ohio, another in Harvard Law School, afforded him an education superior to that of most young men of his time. Life has brought to him an experience broader than that of the vast majority of men.

As a result of the prominent part Mr. Gladstone took in the recent Oriental congress in London, one of the prime minister's admirer's discovered that Homer's anax andron (king of men) is none other than the G. O. M. himself, and he expresses his thought in epigram thus:

Translate your Homer, scholars, as ye can,
His anax andron means the Grand Old Man.

Oliver T. Morton, the son of the "war governor," is about to publish a book entitled, "The Southern Empire." It contains three essays, the first of which gives its name to the volume, and is a study of the probable effect on the western world of a successful result of the southern rebellion.

In a letter to the London Telegraph about English wives, Miss Florence Nightingale says: "Irishmen are more sympathetic, more true to their wives, and, in my opinion, we should hear less of unloved and unlovely marriages, less of the divorce courts, if Englishmen showed more sympathy and interest in their wives."

A pretty and novel way of lighting a room is thus described in an English periodical: Panels of frosted or delicately colored glass are inserted into the walls of a room, with a space behind for one or more incandescent electric lamps. The effect was said to be very pretty, having all the appearance of stained windows through which a warm glow of sunlight was diffused.

In the proceedings of the late convention of the New York State Street Railway association, the principal topic under discussion was the electric street railway. Great advantages have been gained by the introduction of the electric system of propulsion, says the Western Electrician, evidence of which is clearly shown in the fact that street railway conventions have of late become practically electric meetings.

Mr. Charles Folger, of the Cincinnati police, has invented an electrical alarm gong for street cars which commends itself for its practical utility. The same current that supplies the light and motor power of the car is, of course, used in operating the gong. The bell is so arranged that the motorman can ring it by merely touching a small button with his foot. The gong sounds as long as the button is pressed, and at the same time the operator is free to use the sand-box in case of a necessarily sudden stop.

The John Hopkins Hospital Bulletin recently received some observations by A. C. Abbott upon the bacteria found in the interior of large hailstones which fell during the storm of April 26, 1890. Care was taken to exclude all organisms except those brought down from the lattitude where the hail was formed. The number of organisms observed ranged from 400 to 700 to the cubic centimeter. The majority represent only a single species—a short, thin, oval bacillus—though several other undetermined species were observed.

Art has been accurate in its representation of the snake in motion as of the horse. The snake does not literally "go upon his belly," scripture to the contrary notwithstanding, but upon his side, and his motion results from the use of the intercostal muscles in such a way as to contract the ribs on one side at a time. By this process and in this position the snake can run very rapidly, but only for a short time. He is quite unable to glide upon a perfectly smooth surface, nor is he able, as most persons suppose, to propel his whole body forward and in the air when striking.

At the recent meeting of the British association the so-called inducto-scripts of Rev. F. J. Smith, of Glasgow, were shown and explained by the recorder, Mr. Baynes. A coin or engraved metal is placed on a photographic plate, and the induction spark passed from the coin to the metal; on developing, an image like the breath-figures appears, not, however, if the experiment is made in vacuo. Mr. Glazebrook, F. R. S., has tried moistened bromide plates with or without the external current of one cell; he obtained similar, but rather irregular results.

In Buffalo, where there is an abundant supply of natural gas, it is said there are in existence many convenient arrangements for utilizing it in the matters of cooking and heating. One of these is thus described: Upon awakening of a frosty morning the master or mistress of the house can touch an electric button in the headboard of the bedstead and light the fires in the dressing room, dining room and kitchen. Another electric signal arouses the cook, and by the time that she reaches the kitchen she finds a hot fire awaiting her. The house, meanwhile, becomes comfortably warm while the members of the family are dressing.

The Denver (Col.) News, in an account of the Pasadena & Mount Wilson railway in that state, which is to be completed in December, says of that remarkable enterprise: "It starts from the foot of Mt. Wilson, and by a cable, which is operated by the 'water-bucket' system now in use in the Alps, cars are carried over a mile to the first hotel. From there, winding through canyons and by devious ascents, they are conveyed by electricity to the summit of Mt. Wilson, the highest of the Sierra Madre range. The trip from roses to sleigh riding is to be made in 30 minutes. The road will be the only mountain electric line in the world and one of the wonders of the continent."

The Electric World states that one of the large manufacturing companies is now constructing for a central station which has been in operation for a number of years with very large slow speed triple expansion engines driving what must be regarded as comparatively small generators—a 5,000 light alternator, which is to be driven through direct connection by an Allis-Corliss engine making but 90 revolutions per minute. The armature of this alternator will be about 8 feet in diameter, and will take the place of the ordinary fly-wheel on the shaft of the engine, which, it may be mentioned, is a compound 500-horse power. It is expected that the plant will be in operation by the first of the year.

CURED

"About seven or eight months ago I was attacked by a cough, and at once began to take a medicine much advertised as an expectorant, and continued using it until I had taken about six bottles. Instead of giving me relief, it only made me worse. I tried several other remedies, but all in vain, and I don't think I had three whole nights' rest during my illness. I began to think that had laid hold of me, and my hopes of recovery were all gone. I was a mere skeleton, but a friend of mine, who had been some time away, called to see me. He recommended me to try Ayer's Cherry Pectoral, and kindly sending me a bottle, I took it, but with little hopes of recovery. I am thankful, however, to say that it cured me, and I am to-day enjoying the best of health."—J. Wilmot Payne, Monrovia, Liberia.

Was the New York Celebration.

The Last Day Given Over to Rejoicing.

Reception and Banquet To Be Held at Lenox Lyceum—In General.

New York, Oct. 13.—The exercises incident to the 400th anniversary of the landing of Columbus will close to-night with a great reception and banquet at the Lenox Lyceum.

There was no public celebration to-day, but nevertheless it is being observed very much as a holiday, and Fifth avenue, Broadway and other leading thoroughfares are still crowded with people from out of town attracted by the numerous events of the past three days.

About 1,500 people will participate in the reception to-night, and of these nearly 900 will sit down to the subsequent banquet. In the regretable absence of President Harrison, Vice President Morton will do the honors of the occasion. Ex-President Cleveland, Gov. Flower, Mayor Grant and a few other notable people will also be among the distinguished guests.

The menu cards were issued from the engravers this morning. They are seven by nine inches, with two heavy green vellum card-board covers enclosing. On the front is a medallion picture of Columbus, encircled with a wreath of laurel draped on the right side with Spanish and American flags. On the left is a figure of Columbia, typifying the state of New York, with her left hand resting on the coat of arms of the city. The right hand is in the act of crowning Columbus with a wreath of laurel, and on the back of the cover is a representation of the sun's rays with a twig of laurel and the dates "1492"-"1892" embossed in gold.

The first leaf is suitably engraved in large script.

On the second is a plate of Columbus propounding his theory at the monastery of La Rahida, with the first half of the menu below.

On the third leaf is a representation of Columbus in the act of taking his departure from Palos, and below the remainder of the menu.

On the fourth leaf is a representation of Columbus sighting land from the deck of the Santa Maria, and below the first half of the official toasts.

The fifth leaf shows the landing of the discoverer and beneath the remainder of the toasts.

The sixth page illustration depicts Columbus at the court of Ferdinand and Isabella on his return, reciting the story of his discovery, and accompanied by American Indians.

Below are the names of the members of the committee on banquet. On the seventh leaf appears the names of the committe of one hundred. On the back of the cover are the Spanish and Italian flags, covered with the arms of the United States in gold. The whole affair is bound with red, white and blue ribbon, with an official bronze medal attached to the binding.

PLOT OF TO-NIGHT'S PLAY.

James T. Powers in A Mad Bargain.

Rachel Booth Supports Him in the Cast—A Texas Steer Friday and Saturday Evenings.

A good, straight comedy is promised at Wheeler's this evening. James T. Powers appears in his new piece, A Mad Bargain. The specialty feature has been eliminated, and the members of the company are hired to act. The plot is as follows:

Arthur Jones, personated by Mr. Powers, meets Rose Robinson (Rachel Booth) in the park, flirts, writes letters to her, makes her acquaintance and proposes. The coquette refuses him and the young man becomes desperate. He wants to commit suicide, but lacking courage he asks his cousin, Albert Jones, to kill him, as a recompense assigning to him his life insurance. No sooner is this mad determination, and, naturally, Arthur does termination, and, naturally, Arthur does not wish to die. Albert tries to accomplish his part of the bargain without success, and finally engages Al Batts to commit the murder. No sooner has he made this bargain than he receives word that a wealthy uncle in England has died and left Arthur £100,000, and Albert himself £1,000 a year as long as Arthur lives. The latter's life becomes as precious to his cousin as to himself, and the fear of the two and their suspicion of everybody cause many funny situations.

A Texas Steer.

Chas. H. Hoyt's success, A Texas Steer, will be produced at Wheeler's Friday and Saturday evenings, by a strong company headed by Tim Murphy and Flora Walsh. The play, which is full of bright lines and amusing situations, deals with political matters and is in fact a satire on American politics.

The Fast Mail.

The Fast Mail, with all its grand railroad effects, will be at the People's all next week. Many railroad plays have been produced, in fact too many, but none have approached The Fast Mail in realism. The scenes laid on and about railroads in this piece are as near perfection as actors, scenic artists and stage carpenters can make them.

Haverly Coming.

Col. Haverly is on top again, and will turn up in Toledo Wednesday evening next at Wheeler's, with his original Mastodon Minstrels. This organization has for the past 28 weeks given two performances daily at Haverly's handsome playhouse, the Casino in Chicago. In this company will be found such well-known names as Billy Rice, D. M. Hall, E. M. Kayne, Chas. Sully, Bogert and O'Brien, Delmore and Wilson, A. M. Thatcher, Fred Bandell, Arthur Yule, Geo. Evans and many others well known in the minstrel world. Instead of the usual minstrel parade at 12 o'clock a pleasant innovation will be given in a grand open-air concert at 3 o'clock, at the corner of Madison and St. Clair streets.

SPORTING NEWS.

Lexington, Ky., Oct. 13.—Yesterday was by far the most pleasant day of the breeders' meeting, but the card was rather light. The free-for-all trot was the only contest that brought any speed of moment and none of the flyers in that had to lower their records. The 2:23 trot, for which Major was favorite, was a gift to Seagirl after the big stallion had won the first heat. Seagirl made a break in the second heat, but came very fast, and, carrying Major off his stride, reduced her record to 2:18 1-4. Two more heats gave the victory to the black mare, the third being close between her and Ambrosial, as she made a break on the stretch, and only got to the wire a neck ahead of the colt. Major had interfered with Ambrosial and was set back for the fouk. Jack and Charleston brought the best prices in the auction pools in the free-for-all, and when the stallion got the first heat in 2:13 1-2, it was $85 to $100 on him. Ryland T. got away four lengths back in the second heat, but his great brush carried him to the front before Charleston reached the half, and then the fleet gelding jogged home in 2:12 1-4. In the third heat Ryland was not headed, but he lost a shoe in the fourth on the back stretch and had a close call to save his distance, Ermine beating the rest handily in 2:13 3-4. The fifth heat found Ryland T. steady, and shooting past the others at once he played with them in 2:13. Doble and McHenry made a claim of foul against Ryland T., saying he had pinched both Charleston and Jack, but after a grave deliberation the judges refused to entertain the protest and gave the race to the speedy and game trotter. Prince Herschel was a hot favorite for the three-year-old, placing his record at 2:22. Pearl McGregor had been driven suspiciously, and when Goldsmith was put up she went away in the lead and was not headed, slowing up in the last quarter and able to go in 2:20. This event was then postponed, and the others for to-morrow are two stakes, the Lexington and Johnston for two-year-olds and 2:30 stallions respectively, with the free-for-all pace. Mascot will not be in the pace, as his driver, Andrews, objects to the starting judge. Summaries:

SENSATONAL CASE.

A School Teacher Gets Into Trouble.

St. Marys, O., Oct. 13.—(Special)—Prof. A. Rautenbach, a German teacher in the public schools here, was discharged by the board of education this morning, it having been proven that he is a base deceiver and rascal.

Last summer he spent his vacation in Chicago, becoming acquainted with Miss Selma Weidman, an accomplished lady, whom he promised to marry, and succeeded in getting money and other valuables from her, amounting to $100.

The wedding day was set for yesterday, he having arranged to go to Europe after the ceremonies.

Several days ago he informed her that he was down with typhoid fever, and requested her not to come. This was simply a bluff to mislead her, and yesterday she came directly from Chicago, and when she learned that he had betrayed her she exposed him.

COLUMBUS DAY.

Valparaiso, Oct. 13.—The Italian colony in this city celebrated Columbus day by giving a banquet.

A fac simile of the caravel Santa Maria was saluted by the shipsi n the bay. In all the ceremonies the United States flag was pre-eminent. The day was regarded as a legal holiday in Santiago, Concepcion, Iqueque and other cities throughout the republic.

SHOT IN A FIGHT.

Wauseon, O., Oct. 13.—(Special.)—At Metamora, yesterday, in a drunken fight two brothers, Dan and Tom Berry, were shot by a Mr. Clark. One was shot three times and the other once. One of the Berrys may die.

WOODSTOCK, Ulster Co., April 25, 1892.
DR. DAVID KENNEDY:

Dear Sir—Naturally energetic I found it hard to be the victim of fell disease. I was terribly troubled with my stomach, my food would break up sour after eating—would wake up every night with a burning, sour distressed feeling there, that made my life almost unbearable. I doctored with physicians and took many so-called cures but none helped me; seeing in the newspapers of the wonderful cures performed by Dr. David Kennedy's Favorite Remedy, of Rondout, N. Y., I determined to try it; after using it a little while relief came and before I had finished the third bottle I was entirely cured. Just think of it stranger, from a sick man—ENTIRELY CURED. ALWAYS Before using Favorite Remedy I was constantly constipated and have not been troubled that way since. But the greatest blessing was the cure it performed for my wife, who previous to taking it was troubled with sickness common to all women. She was so ill that she could hardly drag herself about the house; she too tried all kinds of so-called positive cures but with no avail until she began using Favorite Remedy, and that was the medicine we had been praying for. After using it but a short while she began to pick up in health and strength and is a well woman to-day. CURES I honestly believe had it not been for Dr. Kennedy's Favorite Remedy she would have been in her grave to-day. It's the greatest medicine on earth. It's worth its weight in gold.

Yours truly, JAMES W. SHULTIS.

Read this over again ye sceptics and incredulous ones! Ought you not to use this valuable medicine and enjoy health and happiness?

SAVED BY A BEAN.

The Club Liar Relates a Lion Hunting Experience in Africa.

"Some years ago," said the club liar, speaking rapidly—if he spoke rapidly, with no pauses, he thus avoided interruption)—"some years ago a gentleman and his two attendants were treed by a Nubian lion. They were journeying by the third cataract of the Upper Nile, in what would have been the "garden spot" of the earth but for its fertility. It was so fertile that things planted there grew, matured and withered away to nothing before one could get time to harvest them.

"Starvation stared at this gentleman and his two attendants, trapped as they were by the raging lion. Their old-fashioned muzzle loading muskets were useless. They had dropped their bullet pouches and dared not climb down.

"It was the commencement of the rainy season and the clouds were gathering. They were starving. There was nothing for them to eat—absolutely nothing—except a er-er—except a single bean—a bean which the gentleman had found in his pocket, where he had put it months before as a souvenir—a souvenir of Boston. Now this gentleman knew beans. He noted the fast approaching rain. Then, close to the foot of the tree, he dropped the bean into the soft soil. Instantly, such was the fertility of the soil, it took root and grew.

"It grew seventeen feet six and one-eighth inches each second, and as it shot up by the treetop those there had but just time to gather its crop (two bushels of the best pea beans) before it withered away and died. And they used beans for bullets and peppered the lion with them. They couldn't mortally wound him, but they did literally fill him full of beans.

"The clouds gathered fast, and just as they exhausted their ammunition down came the rain and wet the lion through and through. And the way those beans absorbed water was wonderful. Ten minutes after the first drop fell the lion was as big as an elephant and couldn't move. The beans, as thick as maggots in cheese, just under his skin, had swelled, and he died of heart failure before the men in the tree could climb down to shoot him."—New York Herald.

IT WAS THERE, THOUGH.

Mysterious Optical Illusion Outside the Liver and Lard Emporium.

Excitement was no name for it. It was about 4 o'clock yesterday afternoon when a head shot out of an upper window in the Tribune office and gazed intently upon a spot on the roadway. The head was withdrawn and presently reappeared with another by its side. Both heads turned to the same spot in the road. The two heads were withdrawn again and plunged out, reinforced by two more similarly intent on the deep stain.

The terra cotta emblems tacked over the Tribune threshold haunted in the air. The group of heads engaged in a spirited debate and then disappeared.

"It's terra cotta beyond a cavil," said the owner of one of the heads.

"It is nothing," said a man with a sharp-pointed, scientific nose.

"Nothing?"

"That's what I say—it is absolutely nothing. You only fancy you see a terra cotta stain in the road. It is a mere fancy."

"You don't say." This from the chorus.

"Yes; scientific fact. Mental concentration impairs visual accuracy. If you will imagine the black outline of an elephant and fix it in your mind, then turn suddenly and stare at a white wall, you will see an elephant."

"Great Scott!"

"True as gospel. Now your minds have dwelt so much on terra cotta lately and your vision is so distraught that you fancy you see a terra cotta stain down there where there is none at— What's this?"

An old woman came up with a tin bucket and a spoon and began scooping up the terra cotta stain.

"Eh," yelled the scientific man, "what are you doing?"

"Shure," said the old woman, "it was me as dropped it, and it is not the likes of me to let as fine tomato catsup as this be trampled under foot."

And the group of heads disappeared in the sanctum as one head, and the policeman on his beat went on beating, and the rest was peace save for the hoarse flapping of the liver and lard banmerets against the facade of the Tribune office, as they tried to crawl inside and hide themselves from the threatening gaze of the populace.

THE DIMENSIONS OF HEAVEN.

They Are Based on a Passage in Revelations—Room for All.

The following remarkable calculations on the capacity of heaven, which has frequently been published, but is a curiosity in its way and well worthy a place among our other "wonders," is taken bodily from Bombaugh's "Gleanings for the Curious." The basis of the calculation, which will furnish much food for thought, is found in Revelation xxi., 16. "And he measured the city (the New Jerusalem) with a reed, 12,000 furlongs. The length, the breadth and the height are equal."

Let us see: Twelve thousand furlongs, 7,920,000 feet, which, being cubed is 948,088,000,000,000,000,000,000,000 cubic feet. Half of this we will reserve for the throne of God and the court of heaven; half the remainder for streets, leaving a balance of 124,198,272,000,000,000,000 cubic feet. Divide this last by 4,096, the cubic feet in a room 16 feet square, and you will find that there is still enough left for 30,321, 843, 750,000,000 rooms.

We will now suppose that the world always did and always will contain 900,000,000 of inhabitants, and that a generation lasts 33 1-3 years, making in all 2,570,000,000 for each century, that the world will stand 1,000 centuries, making in all 2,970,000,000,000 inhabitants. Then suppose there are 100 worlds equal to this in point of inhabitants and duration of years, making 297,000,000,000,000. then heaven, according to the measurement above, is large enough to allot 100 rooms each 16 feet square to each human soul.—Philadelphia Press.

INDIANS IN A BIG HOTEL.

tanding Bear a nd His Companions Startled by An Elevator Trip.

Grim old Chief Standing Bear of the Sioux, Black Eagle, Lo, Horse and the rest of them had some experience on their arrival at San Francisco that made them more stoical than ever. As they stepped into the Baldwin Tuesday night, feathers awry and vermilion on their faces, they were at once conducted to the elevator, as Clerk Hardenburgh had assigned them to rooms on the fourth floor. The elevator door slammed, and the lift proceeded to get in its work. Then it was that the eyes of every individual Indian started from their sockets. The savages gave some big gasps and held their hands over their beks. Not a groan escaped them, but it was plain to a Newsletter man that they were as near surprised as Indians could be. Chadun, 30 miles from Pine Ridge, having been the biggest town they had been familiar with, the elevator system was new to them, and they let it be known that they were not positive as to the safety of the "house which went up and down in the air," the first they had seen.

When the chieftains got ready to go to bed they examined the mattresses and pillows critically, and finally concluded it was utterly impossible to sleep upon them. So, after throwing open every window till the night breezes played about like a whirlwind, they dismantled completely the bedsteads, stacked up the mattresses, pillows and coverlets against the walls, and then, wrapping themselves only in the blankets, retired on the floor to be comfortable.

Next morning when they went in to breakfast the waiters showed them the bills of fare. Each warrior scanned his carefully and seemed to be lost in thought. "Give us p'enty of meat, coffee, bread," at last said old Standing Bear. "These make Indian fat. He want nothing else." Plenty of each was brought, and the red men, discarding knives and forks, sailed in with their fingers.

The program has been pretty much the same ever since. A book could be written about Standing Bear. Only allusions have thus far been made to him in any of the dailies. Properly speaking, he is not a Sioux, but a Northern Cheyenne. With Crazy Horse, Hunting Hog and Old Chief Gall he has been at the head of nearly all the notable Indian wars for 20 years. He routed the Pawnees and once killed 10 white men in a lonesome canyon single-handed. On another occasion he defied and defeated alone 30 cavalrymen. It was Standing Bear who, under Sitting Bull, routed the United States forces when Custer died on the Little Big Horn.

CHINESE NEVER SAVE LIFE.

They Regard It As Interfering With the Intention of the Creator.

Much has been written of the peculiarities and eccentricities of the Chinese, but it is not generally known that the people of the Celestial empire will not rescue one another from accidental death.

At a fire in San Francisco several years ago six Chinese were imprisoned in a room by three half-inch iron bars, which could easily have been broken away. There were two or three ladders in the neighborhood which could have been placed at the windows and the unfortunates easily rescued from a horrible death. There were hundreds of their countrymen looking on at their frantic efforts to escape. Yet they offered no assistance and gave no evidence of sorrow.

A man who has saved many lives, in speaking with a Chinese once said they were very heartless and cited this San Francisco fire as an example, whereupon the Celestial exclaimed:

"I tell you. You sabee Joss! Gol Almighty ale same. Chinaman call him Joss; Mellican call him God. Call him anything. Allee same. Now you say Gol Almighty make ebleting."

"Yes, everything."

"Make allee men?"

"Yes."

"Know ebleting?"

"Yes."

"Now, do you think you know more than Gol Almighty?"

"No, I do not."

"He makee allee men. He see one man. He think him no good. He say, 'You no use; go die.' You think you no let man die. Gol Almighty he say: 'He velly smart. He catchee man to tell go die. Velly well, that man begin new. He callee that man's life all him sins, all him troubles, all him bad luck. You hab heap good things?'"

"No."

"No hab much houses, much money, much land?"

"No not much."

"All light, you nebbe hab much luck. How many you save?"

"About fifty."

"Oh, you nebbe get out. You cally all fifty life. Ebleting you do, no finish, work allee time heap trouble. Sabee fifty life. You live hundled years—had bad luck allee time. Gol Almighty he sabee best."—Fire and Water.

BACKED WITH BANK NOTES.

A Picture Which Had a Lining That Included Two Five Hundred Dollar Bills.

Charles W. Duntz lives on the Landing road, Kinderhook, N. Y., near the Halfway house. One morning recently, while his wife was engaged in cleaning a portrait that had been in their possession more than a quarter of a century, she accidentally broke through the cover on the back and saw underneath it a piece a paper. She pulled it out and found that it was an old $2 bill. She called her son's attention to it and the lad took the cover off. Underneath it they found two $500 bills issued by a bank in Massachusetts, one in 1856, the other in 1861. During the day Mr. Duntz took the bills to the Union bank and learned that the bank of issuance was still in existence, and that the bills were probably genuine and worth their face value. Mr. Reynolds, teller of the bank, communicated with the Massachusetts bank people and learned that it had $500 bills of the old state issue still out and was ready to redeem them if they were genuine. About 28 years ago, says Rough Notes, this picture was sent to Mr. Duntz by a wealthy relative, who requested that it should be carefully kept in the family, the portrait being that of a daughter who is still living. Mr. Duntz thinks that the donor placed the money where it was found, expecting that it would be discovered some day when it would be of some real benefit to the finder. She was very peculiar in her ways at all times.

Buyers were not disposed to venture much until they had more reliable information regarding the out turn of the American cotton crop. There was a moderate home trade, though the bad weather interferes with the distribution of goods. Yarns were quiet. There were some sales for Japan and a small business was done with the continent at the last prices.

INDIANA.

The Apportionment Cases in the Supreme Court.

Indianapolis, Oct. 13.—In a written opinion by Judge McBride, and concurred in by all the judges, the supreme court of Indiana yesterday afternoon disposed of the various motions and petitions in the apportionment case. The motion of Attorney General Smith to dismiss the appeal is overruled.

The court holds that the statements of the papers and the affidavit filed show that there is a real controversy and that it is one which the parties have a right to wage. It says in substance that the relator had a right to bring the suit in order to secure a decision of the courts upon the validity of the law and that county officers had a right to resist the complaint to the end, and that statements reflecting upon the attorney general are improper, although the attorney general is in the case by invitation. Oral argument will be heard November 17. This decision removes the case as a factor in the election.

Triplicate mirrors, $7, $10—Cawood's.

CROOKED WORK.

Chicago Has an Interesting Case On Trial.

Chicago, Oct. 13.—To learn the amount of short ribs on the market is now said to be the object back of the prosecution of Cudahy and Wright. The case was called in Justice Glennon's court yesterday, but was continued. The prosecution has subpoenaed all the big packers and will attempt to make them bring their books into evidence. W. J. Hynes and A. S. Trude, counsel for the defendants, propose to take the aggressive and charge the other side with conspiracy. Who the persons are that are back of Thomas Rousch, the complaining witness, has not been made public. Mr. Hynes said yesterday: "We believe we shall have an action against the persons who caused my clients' arrest. We shall try to prove conspiracy to bring about a citizen's arrest for private gain."

NOT A CAMPAIGN ISSUE.

A good many people seem to have an idea that the presidential campaign is not attracting as much attention as usual. Maybe it isn't, but one thing is certain, those new "Grandfather's Hat" cakes recently put on the market are proving immensely popular. We are told that Worts-Kirk-Bigelow, with all their facilities for baking great quantities in a short time, can scarcely supply the demand. And it is political sentiment that is making the demand, either, for democrats as well as republicans buy them. "Grandfather's Hat" cakes are really delightful dainties and it is no wonder that the people like them. Ask your grocer for them.

MILL BURNED.

Lockport, N. Y., Oct. 13.—The flour mills of J. W. Little and George T. Chester, located on Mill street and just in the rear of Main street, were destroyed by fire yesterday, causing a loss of $125,000, with insurance of about $70,000.

UNSATISFACTORY

Will Be the Week at the World's Fair.

Only Part of the People Can Get In and Many Will Have to Walk.

Chicago, Oct. 13.—People who are contemplating availing themselves of the reduced railroad rates for the purpose of visiting Chicago and taking in the world's fair dedicatory exercises next week may be advised to remember Punch's advice to people about to marry, "Don't."

The directors of the enterprise have finally put their feet down and decided that only those who have been honored with special invitations will be admitted within the inclosure of Jackson park that day.

Not only this, but it has developed that the railroad and street car facilities are at present not equal to the transportation of more than 50,000 people to the grounds, and as tickets of admission to the manufactures building to a total of 125,000 have been issued it is apparent that not many more than half the invited guests will be enabled to reach the rendezvous or be able to return the same day if they reach it.

The outlook, therefore, for the rank and file is anything but alluring, and the prospect of an immense crowd in Chicago next week is giving the authorities no little uneasiness.

CANADIAN LOGS.

People Over There Want the Duty Put Back.

Ottawa, Ont., Oct. 13.—The government has been asked by Canadian lumbermen to reimpose the lumber export duty of $1 a thousand on logs shipped to the United States.

The duty was abolished by the late Sir John Macdonald because an alternative clause in the McKinley bill provided that lumber coming from any country which imposes an export duty on saw logs shall pay double duty on logs exported to the American market. Wealthy American lumbermen sent their agents over to Canada and possessed themselves of great timber areas tributary to the waters of Georgian bay and Lake Huron; they established their mills upon the Michigan side and towed their logs across. By manufacturing at Saginaw or Bay City they get the benefit of competitive freight rates to the eastern and western markets.

Engagement rings, $5, $8, $10—Cawood.

CHARGED WITH CRIME.

Glasgow, Oct. 13.—A sailor named McNeily of the Anchor line steamer Furnessia, has been arrested for complicity with McEwen in the murder on the Albert road yesterday morning. McNeily was acquainted with McEwen and passed the night with him at West Lodge. He denies all knowledge of the crime.

New goods received daily—"Cawood."

MRS. DEACON.

Grasse, Oct. 13.—Mrs. Edward Parker Deacon arrived here to-day, accompanied by her counsel, M. Barboux. She looks worn and anxious and leaned heavily on M. Barboux's arm. Interest in the coming trial is increased by her arrival, for until recently she had not intended to be present. Mr. Deacon says he will insist that no indecency be allowed in the evidence. Many witnesses, newspaper reporters and friends of the Abeilles and Mr. Deacon are in town.

TURKISH BONDS.

Frankfort, Oct. 13.—The Frankfurter Zeitung says the German holders of Turkish bonds have begun action in the civil courts of Berlin against Baron Bleichroder, banker and protege of Prince Bismarck, to recover 160,000,000 marks damages which they suffered from his illegal action in connection with the conversion of 1890. The conversion was in violation of law, they say, regulating the portion of the Turkish debt in question.

Nobody will suffer with liver or kidney disease if they take Simmons Liver Regulator.

COLUMBUS DAY.

New York, Oct. 13.—A special cable dispatch from Valparaiso says: Columbus day was celebrated throughout the republic yesterday on an elaborate scale. In compliance with the proclamation of the government, business was entirely suspended and the day was devoted to festivity. There were public exercises in this city and at Santiago, and in each of which many thousands of people participated.

BAD TREATMENT.

London, Oct. 13—The Standard's Shanghai correspondent says: The crews of ten British sealing vessels which had been seized by Russian cruisers and brought to Vladivestock complain of barbarous treatment to which they were subjected by their captors."

INDORSED ANDREWS.

New York, Oct. 13.—Judge Andrews, of Syracuse, the republican nominee for chief justice of the court of appeals, has been indorsed by the democratic state committee. The nomination was made by W. A. Kirke, of Syracuse, and seconded by Bourke Cockran.

SUICIDE.

Pittsburg, Pa., Oct. 13.—Louis Marx, of the firm of Marx Bros., of McKeesport, Pa., shot and killed himself in the store of S. Kaufman & Sons, on Ninth street. Financial troubles are supposed to be the cause.

EXPECTED STRIKE.

St. Louis, Oct. 13.—It is expected that within the next few days a strike of the switchmen, similar to the one that occurred at Buffalo a few weeks ago, will be inaugurated in the Big Four yards in and around St. Louis.

DESTROYED BY FIRE.

Muncie, Ind., Oct. 13.—The Ohio wagon works, owned principally by George Edgerly, was destroyed by fire last night. Loss $20,000, with $16,300 insurance. This is the seventh of Muncie's new industries to burn recently.

STRUCK A CAR.

Kansas City, Mo., Oct. 13.—A freight train on the Belt line ran into a grip car at the Fifteenth street crossing, and killed three people outright, fatally injuring a fourth.

"THE OTHER GIRL."

The Giddy Maiden and the One Who Wasn't so Giddy.

Particularly interesting was the contest between two maidens at an eastern summer resort, says the Boston Herald.

The Boston girl made up her mind that she would marry the professor, and that, too, before the summer was over. She noticed that he liked to fish and she took it up also.

There was at the place another girl, a real dear little girl with curly hair and bright blue eyes. But the Boston girl was not a bit afraid of her. Pooh, indeed! The professor wanted sense and the Boston girl knew he did. Of course he wanted some one who would sympathize with him in his pursuits and all that, but sensibly.

One day all three went fishing and the little girl first hooked something. She announced it by lifting her voice in a shrill shriek and beating her feet. She shrieked louder and louder as she pulled on her line, and she beat her little feet harder and harder. At the top of her voice she hollered. "Oh, take it off; take it off! Take it off!" All through this the Boston girl sat unmoved. The little girl cried to the professor, "Oh, don't hurt the poor little thing. Oh, please let it go into the water again." The professor was as calm as possible and began to take the hook out.

Meanwhile the Boston girl caught a fish without moving a muscle. As she inserted her fairy fingers down its throat she remarked gravely: "Do be still; they have no nervous systems and you will scare away the fish." And the Boston girl was glad the other girl had come and set off real sense.

The way that other girl behaved was perfectly awful. When the water came into the boat she tucked her pretty skirts way above her ankles and showed high heels and silk stockings. Though it went against the Boston girl's modesty, she also tucked her dress up that the professor might see her sensible thick shoes and blue woolen hosiery, and he looked at them, too, and then at the other girl's disgraceful display, and the Boston girl knew that he could not fail to draw comparison.

The Boston girl's hair came down scraggy, but the other girl's hair when it came down (she shook it down) was all in kinks and curls. So unsuitable! The other girl got thirsty and cried about it, and the professor had to land and go hunting for a house to "borrow some water, oh, please." And while he was gone she took out a pocket case and put powder on her nose and said: "What a dear old goose he is, isn't he? I only wanted a chance to drink!"

Shameless thing! And the professor walking miles! When he appeared in the distance bearing a big milk can of water didn't she run to help him and pretend to be so nice! The Boston girl was actually ashamed of her.

Then, what do you think? The professor went and proposed to her the first thing when they got home. To the Boston girl? No, indeed! The other girl.

CALIGRAPHY OF MEN OF GENIUS.

A Parisian, who has been making an examination of the caligraphy of the illustrious writers of France, agrees with an Englishman who has been similarly employed with the writings of Englishmen of genius, that celebrated literary men and great artists are, as a rule, wretched writers. The Englishman says: "I once secured a letter from Dean Stanley which took me three weeks to read, and a friend to whom I afterward showed the letter pointed out to me that I had not read it correctly." It appears from the Parisian's examination the able men in Paris resemble Dean Stanley.

Alexandre Dumas, fils, and Victoria Sardou are the worst of contemporary writers. Balzac, Janin and Victor Cousin have also a bad name for their caligraphy, while Victor Hugo was the terror of compositors. Pascal was also a scrawler, his manuscripts of the "Pensees" being like a collection of hieroglyphics. Chateaubriand made many alterations in his manuscripts; but Bellini, the musical composer, was undecipherable. On the other hand, it is noted that among the fairly legible writers are Lamartine, Alfred de Musset, Rousseau and Fenelon. Voltaire was very careful with his manuscripts, and frequently took the trouble to recopy what he had written.

A HINT OR TWO.

It is often difficult in small rooms to find accommodations for evening and best dresses. An ingenious contrivance was shown to me recently, and I am sure, says the Decorator and Furnisher, many women will be glad to hear of it. It consisted of a wooden box on castors, fitting underneath the bed, long enough to take evening dresses folded almost at full length. It was not quite as wide as the bed, and it could be drawn out very easily by means of a handle at each side. Where space is limited an easel in one corner, prettily draped, with a mirror put in the cross-bar instead of a picture, and a three-cornered table placed just below to hold all the toilet necessaries, form quite an artistic and ornamental spot.

The cross-bar must be broad and tolerably firm and the mirror of good size. The point of the table fits into the corner. A pretty cloth corresponding with the drapery of the easel should be thrown over it. If desired, a second shelf could be added to the table to hold extra things. The pincushion could hang on one side. This arrangement can be carried out with good effect in a boudoir. Any carpenter could make the corner table.

140 & 142 WOODWARD AVENUE, DETROIT.

Mr. Macdonald Cameron, M. P., gives some interesting information about the Dyaks apropos of his recent visit to Borneo. He comes to the conclusion that the practice of head-hunting has to do with a superstitious belief as to the future state. The greater number of heads a man possesses the greater a hero his is considered in this life and the next. The owners of the heads are believed to pay him homage. "I have sat in the house of a chief," he says, "reading by the light of a lamp, the reservoir of which was the skull of an ancient enemy of the tribe, and in front of me was a row of skulls of men who had been decapitated by an ancient hero."

The side-wheel steamer Goliah was the first steamer that came to the Pacific coast, her trip having been made in 1849, and later in 1871, she came for the first time to Puget Sound. She is now owned by the Puget Mill company, and is still in use as a tow-boat. She still has her original machinery, which is in excellent condition.

WOMAN'S WINTER WEAR.

It is the wise woman who is planning her winter wardrobe now.

And she should remember how easy it is to use Diamond Dyes, and how inexpensive a dress will be when made from one recolored with their fast blacks. There are three kinds, for wool, for cotton, and for silk and feathers, but they are all alike in being absolutely fast, non-crocking, and improved by washing with soap.
